President Trump proposed cutting federal funds from the University of California at Berkeley after leftist students rioted against a planned speech by conservative figure, Milo Yiannopoulos. The organized mob shut down free speech and threatened those with an opposing viewpoint. Protesters' Goal Is To Bring Full-Blown Communism to America written by GEG | February 14, 2017

Trevor Loudon investigated the anti-Trump protests and found that most of the top organizers belong to communist revolutionary groups, including the Anti-Globalization Movement of Russia. The movement pretends to be motivated by anger against war, racism, and social injustice, but the real goal is to bring full-blown Communism to America. This is confirmed, not only by the organizers' disdain for capitalism but also by the fact that, as we see in this documentary, when the leaders speak to their followers, they call them 'comrades', a term that, in political context, means 'fellow communists'. While we have reservations about this film's view that all this is coming from Russia while ignoring the great support that comes from within the United States itself, we concur totally with the primary narrative: The organizations funding and organizing the increasingly violent demonstrations and riots in America are following classical Marxist/Leninist strategies for Communist revolution.

This news report did not mention the 2014 coup in Ukraine that was orchestrated by the US State Department, CIA, and George Soros.

Trump Dumped TPP But Didn't Address Investor-State Dispute Settlement System

written by G. Edward Griffin | February 14, 2017

When withdrawing from negotiations for the TransPacific Partnership treaty, Trump did not address the most controversial part of it, which is the investor-state dispute settlement system. The ISDS allows investors in one country to use international courts to sue governments of other countries. This eliminates a major component of national sovereignty.
