

US War Games Practice Toppling North Korean Dictator, Kim Jong-Un

The Trump administration says it will conduct war games near North Korea in response to North Korea's testing of intercontinental ballistic missiles. The US will deploy its Delta Force, Seal Team-6, B-52 bombers, and will construct a drone base nearby, all of which is openly described as a move to topple Kim Jong-Un from power. Ron Paul expresses the concern that announcing this plan to the world (and to Kim Jong-Un) instead of using a surprise strike to remove the dictator, actually could provoke him to use one of those missiles. In other words, Kim Jong-Un is not paranoid when he says the US is out to get him. The US openly confirms this. If he is as crazy as they say, the US may be playing with nuclear fire against its own citizens. -GEG

Judge Nap: Obama Used A British Spy Agency To Surveil Trump

US: The House Intelligence Committee is asking for proof of Trump's claim that Obama 'wiretapped' Trump Towers before the election. Judge Napolitano at Fox News says that the President is allowed to put someone under surveillance without cause or a warrant, but it would leave 'fingerprints'. However, three intelligence-agency sources told Fox News that Obama bypassed the NSA, CIA, FBI, and Justice Department and, instead, used GCHQ, the British version of the CIA, which has full access to the NSA database. The government agent who ordered the surveillance resigned from office three days after Trump became President. -GEG

The Justice Department on Monday asked lawmakers for more time to gather evidence related to President Trump's claim that former President Obama ordered wiretaps on Trump Tower's phones during last year's presidential campaign.

The House Intelligence Committee said it would give the Justice Department until March 20 to comply.

Current and former administration officials have been unable to provide any evidence of the Obama administration wiretapping Trump Tower, yet the president's aides have been reluctant to publicly contradict their boss.

On "Fox & Friends" this morning, Judge Andrew Napolitano said that even if the Obama administration did spy on Trump, there may never be a way to prove it.

He explained that the statutes allow the president to order the surveillance of any person in the U.S., without suspicion, probable cause or a warrant, but that would leave "fingerprints."

In this case, the alleged surveillance was reportedly ordered in a way that left no record, he said.

“Three intelligence sources have informed Fox News that President Obama went outside the chain of command,” Napolitano said. “He didn’t use the NSA, he didn’t use the CIA, he didn’t use the FBI, and he didn’t use the Department of Justice.”

Instead, Napolitano said, Obama used GCHQ, a British intelligence and security organization that has 24-7 access to the NSA database.

Read Full Article Here...

---

Turkey Threatens to Open Floodgates & Weaponize 2-Million Migrants Against The EU

Turkish Deputy Prime Minister Numan Kurtulmus said that Europe has not kept its promises on the migrant deal and, therefore, the agreement is ended, and Turkey is threatening to unleash two-million migrants on Europe. This would be a self-punishing move on the part of the Turks inasmuch as the Dutch invest $22 billion per year in Turkey and are Turkey’s 10th largest importer. Invasion by immigration would guarantee a backlash in Europe and a recession in Turkey. -GEG

Read Full Article Here...

As we noted moments ago, the tit-for-tat aggression resumed its escalation between Turkey and the Netherlands, with Turkish Deputy Prime Minister Numan Kurtulmus exclaiming from Ankara that “Europe’s politicians are under fascist, neo-nazi influence” and in response, Turkey will suspend all high-level diplomatic meetings and cancel all flight permissions for Dutch politicians.

As part of its furious response, Turkey said it would impose various travel sanctions on Dutch diplomats such as halting all high-level political discussions with the Netherlands in the wake of the Dutch government’s decision to bar two cabinet ministers from campaigning in the country. Kurtulmus said during a news conference following a weekly cabinet meeting that Ankara also is closing its air space to Dutch diplomats until the Netherlands meets Turkish requests, according to the AP.

Kurtulmus also says the Dutch ambassador to Turkey, who was traveling when the diplomatic row started, won’t be allowed to return, and said that Turkey’s government plans to advise parliament to withdraw from a Dutch-Turkish friendship group.

It was unclear what the sudden Turkish escalation means for economic ties between the two nations: as a reminder, Dutch direct investment in Turkey amounts to $22 billion, making the Netherlands the biggest source of foreign investment with a share of 16%. Furthermore, Turkish exports to the Netherlands totalled $3.6 billion in 2016, making it the tenth largest market for Turkish goods, according to the Turkish Statistical Institute. Turkey imported $3 billion worth of Dutch goods in 2016. Should the diplomatic spat lead to a collapse in trade relations, a Turkey recession is all but assured.

Kurtulmus said the political sanctions will apply until the Netherlands takes steps to “redress” its actions. He said: “There is a crisis and a very deep one. We didn’t create this crisis or bring to this stage.”

However the most troubling development, and one which has the potential to sway the outcome of the Dutch election which will be held in less than two days, is that in the final power play aimed towards Merkel, Kurtulmus exclaimed that since “Europe has not kept its promises on the migrant deal, for us that agreement has ended.”

President Trump Needs To Do This To Stop Sabotage Inside The Federal Government

Constitutional lawyer, Bruce Fein, says that “personnel is policy”, meaning that the people who hold administrative jobs in government have a greater impact on national policy than the President. He says that the present handful of Trump appointees running key agencies cannot possibly control the US government, which is a $4.3-trillion enterprise with two-million employees and more than two-million contractors. This cannot happen until more managers are appointed at second and third-tier positions to replace Obama holdovers. -GEG

Could The Netherlands Be Overthrown By 400K Turkish Immigrants Living There?

The Netherlands has banned rallies by Turks living there who are conducting political campaigns for an election in Turkey. There are 5.5-million Turks living in Europe, and many of them are allowed to vote in their homeland elections. Consequently, Turkish President Erdogan has been sending his agents abroad to garner those votes – but the Dutch want no part of it. Leaders in the Netherlands are worried that Turkish voters in their country, who are divided on support for Erdogan, will clash with each other and cast an unfavorable light on immigration. In response to the ban on Turkish political rallies in Holland, the Turkish government has threatened the Dutch government with sanctions and has theorized that the Netherlands army of 48,000 soldiers could not prevail against 400,000 Turkish immigrants. -GEG