

Your Utility Company Is Spying On You And Selling Information On Your Activities To Corporations, Governments, And ... Who Else?

written by GEG | March 28, 2017

Jerry Day analyzes a sales video for a software program that enables utility companies to collect data on the minute-by-minute activities of their customers. It creates personal profiles on energy users to be sold to anyone willing to pay for it, which means anyone who can benefit from it. None of this is for the benefit of those being spied upon. The device that makes this possible is the Smart Meter. —GEG
