Texas: Hundreds of protesters opposing the new anti-sanctuary-city law temporarily shut down the session in the House. Matt Rinaldi, a Republican state representative, says that his Democratic colleagues threatened and assaulted him when he called ICE on the protesters, many of them boasting that they were in the country illegally. Rinaldi says Democrat Representative Poncho Nevarez threatened to kill him. Nevarez admitted pushing Rinaldi but denied that he assaulted him. Rinaldi says that Nevarez threatened to “get him” on the way to his car. Rinaldi responded that he would use a gun in self-defense. Most of the protestors are wearing the same style tee-shirts and are carrying professionally-made signs. As usual, the media makes ignores the fact that these protestors typically are organized, directed, bussed, fed, and funded by unseen revolutionary forces, not the common people. These are not grass roots movements. –GEG

El Salvador Fears Crime Wave as Trump Deports Hundreds of Gang Members

So far this year, the US has deported 398 gang members back to El Salvador, compared with 534 in all of 2016. Salvadoran authorities are holding emergency meetings to determine how to deal with the gang members when they arrive back home. The gang engages primarily in drug smuggling and human trafficking. It originated in Los Angeles in the 80's, but its territory now extends from El Salvador to Canada. –GEG

When migrants cross the border from El Salvador, they're not sending their best. Criminals, drug dealers, and rapists have been sneaking into our great country in droves – which in the words of Donald Trump, “has become a dumping ground for everybody else's problems.”

And while President Obama released nearly 600 illegal immigrants convicted of sex crimes in 2015 because their home countries wouldn't take them – the ‘law and order’ President is doing the exact opposite...

The Washington Post, which, in a rare moment of journalistic integrity used verifiable sources, has reported that the government of El Salvador is freaking out over the record number of MS-13 gang members Trump has started to drop back in their home countries.

This year the U.S. government has deported 398 gang members to this country, compared with 534 in all of 2016, according to Salvadoran government statistics. This sharp increase in the rate of gang deportations – and the prospect of more gang roundups in the United States – has prompted Salvadoran authorities to hold emergency meetings and propose new legislation to monitor suspected criminals who are being sent home.

Trump has railed against MS-13

Throughout the 2016 election, Trump mentioned MS-13 in several tweets and speeches – citing the notably violent gang as a prime example of the types of violence illegal immigration, and rightly so. MS-13 is possibly the most notorious street gang in the Western Hemisphere. Originating in refugee-rich neighborhoods in Los Angeles in the 80's, the gang's territory now extends all the way from El Salvador to Canada – engaging primarily in human trafficking and drug smuggling.

In Central America, MS-13's presence has contributed heavily to making the “Northern Triangle” of Guatemala, El Salvador, and Honduras – the most violent place in the world not at war. (more)

ICE arrests

The New York Times – also using actual sources, reports that immigration arrests are up 38% for the first three months of 2017 over the same period last year.

Democrat Data Leak Under Investigation Despite Demands by Debbie Wasserman Schultz

In Washington DC, the smell of corruption has been particularly strong the past few weeks. It seems to be coming from the direction of US Representative, Debbie Wasserman Schultz, who is extremely concerned over the fact that the US Capitol police took possession of a computer that may hold evidence of a $4-million dollar crime within the ranks of government employees. The computer belongs to Imran Awan, who worked as a technology specialist but who now is under investigation for illegally extracting data from the computers of Congressmen. Awan's wife, two of his brothers, his sister-in-law, and his best friend all have been placed on the payroll of various Congressmen even though they never show up for work. These 'ghost' employees have collected $4-million since 2010. Perhaps Congresswoman Schultz thinks that Awan's computer contains compromising information that can be used as blackmail to pressure Congressmen into hiring his family and friends. -GEG

North Korea Fired Its Ninth Missile This Year, Showing Contempt for the US and China

President Trump chastised North Korea after the country showed “major disrespect” toward China when it launched its ninth ballistic missile this year. It flew about 280 miles and landed in the Sea of Japan. -GEG

On Twitter Monday, Trump said: “North Korea has shown great disrespect for their neighbor, China, by shooting off yet another ballistic missile...but China is trying hard!”

South Korea said the launch was “a severe threat to the peace and stability of not only the Korean Peninsula, but also the international community.”

“Since our new government took office, North Korea has been frequently and repeatedly conducting provocation in such manner,” South Korea’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs said a statement. “This is in direct opposition to our demands in regards to the denuclearization and peace of the Korean Peninsula.”

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe “the issue of North Korea is a top priority for the international community.”

Evergreen State College Student Protesters Furious over New Video of Their Antics Made Public

Olympia, Washington: Student protesters at Evergreen State College are furious that a video showing their behavior was made public. Last week they tried to force the resignation of a biology professor by intimidating him, and now they hold the president of the school, George Bridges, hostage during insult-peppered rants. [This is a classic case of mob-emotion spreading among, not ignorant masses, but among ignorant college students – the future leaders of America. Still want to send you child to college?] -GEG

Students at Evergreen State College are furious that a video documenting their anarchic behavior has been made public, The College Fix reports.

The footage shows students going berserk, swearing like your mother never heard and screaming about “racist white teachers,” “white-assed administrators,” and the obligatory “black power” slogans during what was supposed to be a “meeting” between the malcontent students, college president George Bridges and other college administrators.

Activists are not pleased that the embarrassing video can now be seen by the world on the internet, and they they are demanding that the “stolen” document be “taken down” by this Friday.

“We demand that the video created for Day of Absence and Day of Presence that was stolen by white supremacists and edited to expose and ridicule the students and staff be taken down by the administration by this Friday.”

The students then outline just how they expect the university to proceed to find the guilty culprits. Claiming to have been in touch with “the Attorney General’s office,” the students suggest that the university “commit to launching an extensive forensic investigation” to discover just who “stole” the video, and, if a suspect is found, to ask that criminal charges be brought against the suspect “in consultation with the Attorney General.”

The video contains many memorable moments of the students’ interacting with their school administrators. They shout “fuck you, and fuck the police” repeatedly while maintaining that “whiteness is the most violent fuckin’ system to ever breathe!” Attempting a philosophical bridge, the students say they are “tired of white people talking about what black and brown people need” before getting to their real point: “Fuck you George [Bridges]; we don’t wanna listen to a goddamn thing you have to say! No, you shut the fuck up.”

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the Architect of Al-Qaeda That Spawned ISIS, Is Dead

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the former National Security Advisor under President Carter, has died. He was a well know theorist behind the building of global government and was a major influence on US foreign policy. It was his idea to create al-Qaeda as a force to weaken Soviet influence in the Middle East, a force that eventually became ISIS. Alex Jones explains this strategy taken from Brzezinski's book, The Grand Chess Board. The plan was to train and fund violent elements within Islam so they will threaten the world with terrorism and conquest. Then, use the resulting chaos as an excuse to take control of countries while appearing to be saving them from Islam. Jones' summary of this strategy is accurate, but we do not agree with all aspects of this report. For example, we do not agree that President Trump has told the Saudis that the Grand Chessboard is over. We do not agree with him that globalism is dead. We agree with Jones when he says that Soros is not a leftist in spite of the fact that many of his minions are outright Communists, and we agree when Jones says that Soros' civilian armies are mimicking Hitler's Brown Shirts. The main point is that we do not think that making a right-vs.-left distinction means anything significant. That's because the wrong words are being used to describe these groups. Communists and Fascists are both collectivists and they adhere to the same ideology. They are merely the right and left wings of the same ugly bird called collectivism. For a deeper understanding of this issue, see my essay, [Collectivism. For a really deep dive, see The Chasm,] –GEG

US State Department Quietly Opens the Floodgates for Incoming Refugees

President Trump issued an executive order to reduce the number of refugees entering the US, but that has been stalled in the courts. Meanwhile, the US State Department, acting entirely on its own, quietly lifted restrictions on the number of refugees allowed into the US. Immigration advocates are pushing hard for a roll back of Trump's budget cuts for refugee processing. Congress and the State Department are accomplishing that. It makes no difference what the voters want – or don't want. –GEG

Despite repeated efforts by President Trump to curtail refugee resettlements, the State Department this week quietly lifted the department's restriction on the number of refugees allowed to enter the United States.

The result could be a near doubling of refugees entering the country, from about 830 people a week in the first three weeks of this month to well over 1,500 people per week by next month, according to refugee advocates. Tens of thousands of refugees are waiting to come to the United States.

The State Department's decision was conveyed in an email on Thursday to the private agencies in countries around the world that help refugees manage the nearly two-year application process needed to enter the United States.

In her email, Jennifer L. Smith, a department official, wrote that the refugee groups could begin bringing people to the United States "unconstrained by the weekly quotas that were in place."

Although it came the same day as an appeals court ruling that rejected government efforts to limit travel to the United States from six predominantly Muslim nations, the move by the State Department had nothing to do with the court ruling.

The department's quotas on refugee resettlement were largely the result of budget constraints imposed by Congress in a temporary spending measure passed last fall. But when Congress passed a spending bill this month that funded the government for the rest of the fiscal year, the law did not include any restrictions on refugee admissions.

A State Department spokeswoman, speaking on the condition of anonymity because she was not authorized to discuss the issue publicly, said the department had consulted the Department of Justice about its refugee quotas and had decided to adjust them.

Shocking: American Prosperity Has Been Fatally Wounded by Collectivism

While the US used to be a rich country, an increasing number of Americans now are living in poverty. Half of the people in the US have no savings and cannot raise $400 on a day's notice. Politicians refuse to address the death of the middle class because that is the consequence of their own controls over the economy. America is following the deadly path of collectivism only a few steps behind Venezuela. -GEG

Portland Killer Portrayed by

Media as Trump Supporter But Actually Voted for Bernie

Jeremy Christian harassed two young Muslim women and went on an anti-Islamic rant before stabbing two men to death who stepped in to defend the women. As expected, the media is portraying him as a Trump-supporting white supremacist, but he wrote on social media that he voted for Bernie Sanders. Christian's bizarre actions suggest that he is an agent of anti-Trump forces and that his job is to create public revulsion against the President. He initiated scuffles, disgraced the American flag by wearing a semblance of it as a cape, and used the Nazi salute,. He was kicked out of a free-speech rally by Trump supporters who had reported him to the police. The police did nothing as though he was untouchable. Christian's criminal record includes robbery, kidnapping, weapons charges, parole violations, and contempt. It would be easy to recruit a thug like this simply by offering to not prosecute him if he would play the role. Give him some money, too, and the deal is made. -GEG

Former Muslim Extremist Reveals That Extremism Now Dominates Islamic Society And Calls for Reform of Bad Ideas

Hussein Abubakr, a moderate Muslim from Egypt, says that most Muslims are moderate, but their leaders are not. His revelations are sobering, especially for truly moderate Muslims who are being swept into the vortex of extremism whether they approve or not. Most Muslims remain quiet because they fear retribution and do not want to be accused of rejecting their faith. # Evergreen State College Professor Was Cornered by Student Protesters Who Demanded His Resignation

Olympia, Washington: Bret Weinstein, a biology professor for 15 years at The Evergreen State College, has been targeted for a forced resignation. He claims that he was threatened by students who are protesting against racism. Weinstein objected to the students' demand that white people leave campus on a designated day to comply with a protest, and he wrote that one's right to speak on a college campus should not be based on skin color. Weinstein was told by police that it was not safe for him to teach on campus and that the radical students were looking for him, presumably intending to commit bodily harm. College President Dr. George Bridges ordered police not to take action against the 'activists' and is allowing students, who are threatening violence, to control the campus. In response, the police have barricaded themselves in the campus police station. -GEG

Students berate professor who refused to participate in no-

whites 'Day of Absence'

Over the last 72 hours, students have taken over a small liberal arts college in Washington state, and only one adult has tried to stop them.

Students at Evergreen State College in Olympia, who filmed their exploits and posted the videos on social media, have occupied and barricaded the library, shouting down anyone who disagrees with them or shows insufficient passion for racial justice.

Biology professor Bret Weinstein was berated by dozens of students outside of his classroom Tuesday morning for refusing to participate in an event in which white people were invited to leave campus for a day. Now, he says police have told him to hold his classes off campus due to safety concerns.

Things are "out of control at Evergreen," he said.

"Police told me protesters stopped cars yesterday, demanding information about occupants," Mr. Weinstein told The Washington Times. "They believe I was being sought. It appears that the campus has been under the effective control of protesters since 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. Police are on lockdown, hamstrung by the college administration. Students, staff and faculty are not safe."

A spokesman for the Evergreen Department of Police Services confirmed the agency had been in contact with Mr. Weinstein. He said officers would be in touch with The Times, but three subsequent phone calls during business hours were not answered.

A college spokesman declined to comment on Mr. Weinstein's situation or any of the other activity on campus.

Evergreen student Blake Vincent said he was participating in the protests and was unaware of any searches for Mr. Weinstein's whereabouts.

"As far as Bret being told not to hold classes on campus, I would love to know if that's true," said Mr. Vincent, who has been posting videos of the protests to his Facebook account, adding that the professor was "never physically threatened."

Mr. Weinstein was confronted outside of his classroom Tuesday morning by dozens of students who demanded he apologize or resign for writing an allegedly racist email.

His email took issue with a "Day of Absence & Day of Presence" demonstration, for which white students, faculty and staff were asked to leave campus for one day.

He wrote: "On a college campus, one's right to speak – or to be – should never be based on skin color."

A video of the confrontation, captured by Mr. Vincent, shows Mr. Weinstein attempting to reason with dozens of students who routinely shout him down, curse at him and demand his resignation.

When the professor tells the students he will listen to them if they listen to him, one student responds, "We don't care what terms you want to speak on. This is not about you. We are not speaking on terms – on terms of white privilege. This is not a discussion. You have lost that one."

Another protester asks the professor whether he believes "black students in sciences are targeted."

After asking for a clarification, Mr. Weinstein says, "I do not believe that anybody on our faculty, with intent, specially targets students of color."

That remark prompts shrieks of outrage.

Eric Weinstein, the professor's brother, called the exchange ironic due to his brother's "center-left" political views and staunch anti-racism.

"If you had asked me who is one of racism's most powerful foes, I would have said Bret Weinstein," Eric Weinstein told The Times. "There's something sort of 'Twilight Zone' about one of the most thoughtful commentators on race, at one of the most progressive schools in the country, getting called a racist."

After shouting at Mr. Weinstein for several minutes, according to Mr. Vincent's recollection of events, the protesters marched out of the building and were met by campus police shortly thereafter.

"The students, fearful for their lives, began retreating towards the library and ultimately ended up in the Trans & Queer Center/Unity Lounge, trying to stay safe," Mr. Vincent said in a Facebook post Tuesday. "The white students were then delegated to spread out throughout the library floor and watch for police potentially surrounding the building."

In order to keep the police out, the students barricaded the entrances of the library and seamlessly turned the retreat into a political occupation. Demands followed.

At a meeting between the administration and students later that day, university President George S. Bridges said no students would be punished for their involvement in the demonstrations, even before an investigation into the matter.

"First and foremost, I want to state that there will be, as far as I know, no charges filed against any students involved in actions that occurred this morning," Mr. Bridges said. "We will be conducting a major review, an investigation of all that occurred and will be reporting back to you, the campus community, about exactly what happened, why it happened and what we intend to do about the incident – not the incident, excuse me, the actions that were taken, both students, staff and faculty involved.”

On Wednesday, students crashed a faculty meeting that was planned to, among other things, honor professors nominated for emeritus status. Families of the honorees were in attendance.

A member of the faculty interrupted the proceedings shortly after they began and invited the students to the front of the room to share their stories.

“I’m sorry, but I really appreciate you faculty, but students are here right now,” the professor said. “Why do we need to – I mean, I appreciate celebrating our accolades and how much we’ve done for the college, but they’re here. Like, we need to listen to their voice. They are out there, their bodies are on the line, right?”

When they got to the front of the room, the students condemned the faculty for eating cake rather than supporting the library occupiers.

“Didn’t you educate us on how to do s–t like this?” one student said. “It was you that taught us that in class. Right, though? You taught us to go and change the world. Ain’t that what you all sell on that state college page? To when s–t is wrong that we should try to change it? So why you all in here eating cake and chewing?”
