

Massive MGM Insider Trading Just Before the Vegas Shooting

A few weeks prior to the Las Vegas shooting, at a time when the price of MGM stock was rising, MGM's CEO James Murren sold 90% of his personally held stock. Other executives of MGM also sold off large chunks of their holdings shortly before the shooting. A motion has been filed for Mandalay Bay and its parent company, MGM, to preserve anything that could be considered evidence in a pending civil trial for the shooting.
