

Violence "from" the Left" Has Become Mainstream

Judge Jeanine says it is dangerous to be a Trump supporter because the left believes the use of violence is justified against anyone who opposes them. The goal of the haters is to normalize hate and incite violence from those beyond their own ranks. National chaos is what they want as an excuse for martial law, which is the endgame. The philosophy of the militant left now is mainstream. Even some Republicans condone violence against conservatives. -GEG

Monsanto's Dicamba Herbicide "Destroyed 3.6 Million Acres of Soybeans Across the US

Monsanto is being sued over its new herbicide, created for its Dicamba-resistant seeds. Spraying of the weed killer resulted in the poison drifting to neighboring fields and killing natural crops that are not genetically modified to resist Dicamba. Farmers in 25 states submitted more than 2,700 claims to state agricultural agencies against Dicamba for destroying 3.6 million acres of soybeans.

Monsanto thought they had developed an amazing scheme to corner the Midwest farming market when they developed new genetically engineered seeds that were resistant to their new herbicide called dicamba. The resistance of Monsanto's new magical seed crops to dicamba meant that the herbicide could be sprayed liberally by farmers to eradicate weeds and boost yields.

Alas, as we pointed out last week (see: Meet Monsanto's Other Herbicide Problem...), a small problem emerged when spray drifts from those liberal herbicide applications began to wipe out the crops of neighboring farmers who didn't plant Monsanto's dicamba-resistant seeds.

Now, as the Wall Street Journal points out today, after allegedly wiping out millions of acres of farm ground across the Midwest, Monsanto once again finds itself in a familiar spot: the courtroom.

Monsanto's new version of the herbicide called dicamba is part of a more than $1 billion investment that pairs it with new genetically engineered seeds that are resistant to the spray. But some farmers say their nonresistant crops suffered after neighbors' dicamba drifted onto their land.

The agricultural giant in October sued the Arkansas State Plant Board following the board's decision to bar Monsanto's new herbicide and propose tougher restrictions on similar weed killers ahead of the 2018 growing season. Monsanto claims its herbicide is being held to an unfair standard.

Arkansas has been a flashpoint in the dispute: About 900,000 acres of crops were reported damaged there, more than in any other state.

About 300 farmers, crop scientists and other attendees gathered in Little Rock on Wednesday for a hearing on Arkansas's proposed stiffer dicamba controls, which Monsanto and some farmers are fighting. The proposed restrictions are subject to the approval of a subcommittee of state legislators.

Special Counsel Robert Mueller's Investigation of Michael Flynn Could Be More Damaging to Mueller Than to Flynn

Special Counsel Robert Mueller now is investigating the activities of former National Security Advisor, Michael Flynn, hoping to find something that will reflect badly on President Trump. The latest inquiry is into the fact that Flynn was hired by the Turkish government to gather information on an Islamic group in the US, led by Fethullah Gulen, suspected as a front for terrorist operations. Such an investigation was perfectly legal and in the best interest of the United States. [The catch, however, is that, when Mueller was head of the FBI, he closed down the FBI's own investigation of Gulen and quashed the testimony of an FBI whistleblower who tried to bring these facts to light. It is possible that Mueller's investigation of Flynn's role in this must, inevitably, lead to public exposure of Mueller's role, also. That, of course, would depend on the media's willingness to fairly publicize it. We shall see.]

General Michael Flynn, Former National Security Advisor to President Trump, is being investigated by Special Counsel for accepting legitimate payments from Turkish companies for researching and exposing Wanted Terrorist and Radical Islamist Fethullah Gulen and his $25+ Billion criminal network in the United States.

Former FBI Director Robert Mueller is Special Counsel in charge of the case. He is the same Robert Mueller who used his position as Director of the FBI to shield and cover up Gulen's criminal-terrorist network and operations, and take drastic measures to quash a whistleblower's Gulen-related reports. These previous connections and actions by Mr. Mueller create a direct conflict of interest with his current position as Special Counsel in Flynn's case, and require that he must immediately step down from the case.

In May 2017 the Justice Department appointed Robert S. Mueller III, a former F.B.I. director, as special counsel to oversee the investigation into ties between President Trump's campaign and Russian officials.

Not long after being appointed Mr. Mueller began targeting former national security adviser Lieutenant General Michael T. Flynn, expanded the investigation beyond the Russia-Gate probe, and began a furious pursuit of Mr. Flynn's Turkish connections and his vocal stand on the wanted radical Islamic Cleric Fethullah Gulen.

Mr. Mueller's inquiries went from Russia-connections to Flynn's outing of Gulen's twenty five-billion-dollar sleeper terror cell in the United States. Not finding any substantial evidence against Flynn within the Russia-Gate scope, the Special Counsel team switched gears and started a Turkey-Gate. During the past several months Mr. Mueller's prosecutors have used multiple grand juries to issue subpoenas for documents related to Mr. Flynn. All this despite President Trump's demand that:

Mr. Mueller should confine his investigation to the narrow issue of Russia's attempts to disrupt last year's presidential campaign, not conduct an expansive inquiry into the finances of Mr. Trump or his associates.

Mr. Mueller's prosecution team and F.B.I. agents have spent hours going over the details of Mr. Flynn's perfectly legitimate business dealings with a Turkish-American businessman who worked with Mr. Flynn's consulting business, the Flynn Intel Group. Why? Because the business arrangements included research for and exposure of the world's largest radical Islamist network, operating in the United States for over two decades- the Gulen Network.

The targeting of Mr. Flynn through consolidated Obama Whitehouse leaks and one-sided media attacks began six months prior to the Special Counsel appointment. It started with an editorial penned by Mr. Flynn on November 8, 2016, when he became the first public official to unabashedly expose the radical cleric long protected by multiple government agencies- the CIA, State Department and FBI, starting under President Bill Clinton's administration:

The primary bone of contention between the U.S. and Turkey is Fethullah Gülen, a shady Islamic mullah residing in Pennsylvania whom former President Clinton once called his “friend” in a well circulated video.

Gülen portrays himself as a moderate, but he is in fact a radical Islamist. He has publicly boasted about his “soldiers” waiting for his orders to do whatever he directs them to do. If he were in reality a moderate, he would not be in exile, nor would he excite the animus of Recep Tayyip Erdoğan and his government.

To professionals in the intelligence community, the stamp of terror is all over Mullah Gülen’s statements in the tradition of Qutb and al Bana. Gülen’s vast global network has all the right markings to fit the description of a dangerous sleeper terror network. From Turkey’s point of view, Washington is harboring Turkey’s Osama bin Laden.

However, funding seems to be no problem for Gülen’s network. Hired attorneys work to keep the lucrative government source of income for Gülen and his network going. Influential charities such as Cosmos Foundation continue their support for Gulen’s charter schools. Incidentally, Cosmos Foundation is a major donor to Clinton Foundation. No wonder Bill Clinton calls Mullah Gülen “his friend.”

By writing and publishing this strong commentary Lt. General Flynn not only took on the enormously powerful Gulen’s terrorist network, but also the wrath of the CIA and the FBI, the Intelligence and law enforcement agencies tasked with bringing Gulen into the United States in 1998, his grooming, and his ongoing protection for over two decades.

Sean Parker, the first president of Facebook, boasted of creating features that would be addictive and harmful

Sean Parker, the first president of Facebook who helped design the website, boasted that he and other Facebook creators knew they were creating something harmful and addictive. They intentionally exploited a human vulnerability, which psychologists call the social-validation feedback loop, knowing it would be harmful to normal development in the long run. Parker said, "It literally changes your relationship with society and each other. God only knows what it is doing to our children's brains."

Las Vegas: Distressing New Video and More Questions about the Secret Investigation of the Shooting

Catherine Lombardo, an attorney representing many shooting victims, obtained video surveillance footage from a local business that shows a woman's body being placed in the parking lot and then left there as other concertgoers escaped the scene. Police arrived on the scene 45 minutes later, and the body was removed shortly after that. Tucker Carlson explores the deeper significance of this, which is that the Las Vegas police, under direction of the FBI, are not aggressively pursuing evidence of the crime and are more concerned with controlling the narrative of what happened. -GEG

Attorney Craig Eiland, who represents several victims of the Las Vegas massacre, says that all of his clients confirmed they had no escape route on the night of the shooting. Eiland says that the maps and plans show that there were numerous exits, but when he went to the actual scene, he found that most of the exits were behind fences. There were only two places to escape. He raises many other questions about the mysterious shooting – but the FBI has gone silent.
