

Smoking Gun: High Levels of Aluminum in Autistic Brains Triggers Autism

written by GEG | November 29, 2017

The study found that the lowest dosage of aluminum, at 200 mcg, actually delivered more aluminum to the brain than a higher dosage. Low dosages may be more able to slip past the immune system and get to the brain before the body responds. The size of the aluminum particles also are believed to play a role as smaller particles pass more easily through the blood-brain barrier. The US government has given legal immunity to vaccine manufacturers so they cannot be sued for any damage to children from vaccines.

Mick Mulvaney Can Drain the Swamp at the CFPB with Access to Secretive Inner Workings

written by GEG | November 29, 2017

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) is an agency that claims to protect consumers in the financial sector. Instead, it has been used as a legal money-laundering operation for collective causes. The bureau was set up to operate without Congressional oversight and is funded by the Federal Reserve, not Congress.

Dem Congressman Arranged Taxpayer-Funded 'Severance Package' For Staffer to Silence Claims of Bad Drunken Behavior

written by GEG | November 29, 2017

Rep. Raul Grijalva spent $48,395 from taxpayer funds to buy the silence of a former female staffer who threatened a lawsuit claiming Grijalva was frequently drunk and created a hostile workplace environment in 2015. Democrat Rep. Al Green is also under fire following reports he had sex with a drug-addicted staffer and then sued her in 2008 after she threatened to go public with the encounter.
