

Davos Elite Discuss Global Warming- While Snowed In

Many of the speakers at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, were delayed when the town was buried in snow, six-feet deep in some areas. In an ironic twist, globalist elites gathering in Davos, Switzerland to discuss global warming have been delayed due to the town being buried in feet of snow.

Severe snow storms closed the town's roads and helicopter pads as the World Economic Forum summit opened on Monday.

Many of the summit's hundreds of speakers, including heads of state and business leaders, were late for their press conferences and speeches as six feet of snow piled onto the Swiss ski town over the last few days, reported the New York Times.

"What shall we do," said Davos mayor Tarzisius Caviezel at a news conference on Monday. "It's impossible. We can do nothing."

President Trump has already blistered the globalists on their global warming narrative and Paris Climate Accords following the unprecedented "bomb cyclone" that brought record cold temperatures across most of the U.S. last month.

Another German Town Bans New Migrants Following Violence

Cottbus, a small university center with just over 100,000 residents, has taken in around 3,000 asylum seekers since German Chancellor Angela Merkel opened the country to refugees in 2015. Several incidents of violence and a growing sentiment against immigration has led to the ban. Cottbus joins the towns of Salzgitter, Delmenhorst, and Wilhelmshaven in prohibiting new migrants. -GEG

A German city that's become a focal point of right-wing extremists temporarily banned new refugees in an attempt to stem a surge in violence there.

Cottbus, located southeast of Berlin, has been hit with attacks from refugees and far-right extremists since the start of this year.

Brandenburg state police said two Syrian teenage boys were arrested under the suspicion of injuring a German teenager in the face with a knife, the Telegraph reported.

The 16-year-old reportedly sustained injuries that were not life-threatening in what started as a fight between Syrian and German schoolmates.

That fight unfolded just days after a group of three Syrian asylum-seekers, aged 14, 15 and 17, attacked a man and his wife outside a shopping center, police told the Telegraph. Officials handed the 15-year-old a “negative residency permit” effectively ordering him and his father to leave the city.

Cottbus, a small university center with just over 100,000 residents, has taken in around 3,000 asylum seekers since embattled German Chancellor Angela Merkel opened the country to a large number of refugees in 2015.

Coupled with a lackluster economy, the influx has fueled anti-immigrant sentiment among German citizens, and Cottbus is home to one of the country’s largest right-wing extremist scenes.

Authorities counted 145 right-wing radicals living in Cottbus last year, Express Digest reported.

A community group told local media that neo-Nazis had assaulted refugees on the morning of New Year’s Day, while last weekend a group of around 100 masked neo-Nazis marched in an illegal demonstration through the city.

Brandenburg’s state interior minister Karl-Heinz Schroeter told a German broadcaster on Friday that the ban on new refugees would stay in effect “for the next few months.”

Rape Reports Up By 400% in Sweden's Capital Since 1996

Sweden's Crime Prevention Council estimates there were 7,200 rapes reported to the police in 2017, an increase of 10% over the past year. The increase of rape reports in Sweden's capital Stockholm rose by 29% last year and, when compared with 1996, the increase is a staggering 400%. Migrants from Muslim countries commit 84% of violent rapes. While the government and law enforcement try to coverup the data, it reveals that the majority of rapes occur in cities heavily populated by migrants. -GEG

According to Sweden's Crime Prevention Council (Brå), 7,200 rapes were reported to the police in 2017. The number corresponds with approximately 20 rapes a day.

The figures show a substantial 10% increase compared to 2016, when there were 667 fewer rape reports. Other forms of sex crimes also showed an increase: The number of sexual offenses increased by 8% to 21,500 and the number of sexual coercion cases increased by 7%.

Most shocking was the increase of rape reports in Sweden's capital Stockholm. It increased by 29% last year and compared with 1996 the increase is a staggering 400 per cent.

Sweden's mainstream media suggests the surge in rapes has to do with the definition of rape and the increased motivation to report, but looking deeper into the matter, another trend becomes clearly visible.

Earlier the (now banned) site “Gang Rape Sweden” published data that showed that 82 per cent of Sweden’s gang rapists are foreign born.

Other reports showed somewhat the same data: An investigation of convictions between the years 2012-2017 shows that migrants from Muslim countries commit 84 per cent of violent rapes. The Gatestone Institute already showed that Sweden’s rape crisis started after the country became “diverse”.

George Soros Pro-Immigration Group Protests at Senator Chuck Schumer’s House

Dozens of illegal aliens surrounded the New York house of Democrat Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer demanding that Congress pass legislation immediately to give amnesty and a pathway to citizenship to as many as 3.6 million DACA Dreamers in the US illegally. The protesters were organized by United We Dream, a non-governmental organization funded by George Soros’ Open Society Foundation. -GEG

Dozens of illegal aliens surrounded Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer's (D-NY) home in New York on Tuesday demanding that Congress pass legislation immediately to give millions of people in the United States illegally amnesty and a pathway to citizenship.

"We want a Clean Dream Act," the crowd chanted.

"When do we want it?" they chanted.

"Now!" they chanted.

The so-called Dreamers – some of whom are recipients of President Barack Obama's Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals, or DACA – and potentially as many as 3.6 million illegals in all were reacting to the Senate vote on Monday to pass a Continuing Resolution funding the government until Feb. 8 that did not include any immigration amendments.

The crowd chanted in Spanish and English to Schumer; "If he won't let us dream, we won't let him sleep."

The group that organized the protests in New York and on Capitol Hill, United We Dream, is funded by a slew of social justice and open borders organizations, including George Soros's Open Society Foundation.

United We Dream's website announcing the New York protest reveals the group's agenda:

Our community is outraged by the Senate vote to pass a temporary budget deal with no solution for Dreamers. Instead of holding firm for Dreamers, Senator Schumer and most Senate Democrats backed down from their commitment to stand up for our communities.

Join us outside Senator Schumer's house to remind him: Our lives are on the line, Chuck! We need a clean Dream Act

Now—not in three weeks. Now. 122 Dreamers will continue to lose their status every day, potentially losing their jobs and being put at risk of deportation. Congress can't continue to push the lives of 800,000 youth and their families aside. Dreamers are tired of empty promises and need a legislative solution NOW!

It is past time for Senator Schumer to use his political power in Congress as the minority leader and finally bring home a clean #DreamActNow for undocumented youth, without compromising the future of their families by funding a racist wall and increased border security measures that only tear families apart.
