

Britain First Anti-Muslim Activists Sentenced to Jail for Religious Harassment

UK: Paul Golding and Jayda Fransen of the far-right religious group Britain First that campaigns against mass immigration and the Islamization of the UK, have been sentenced to jail, Paul for 4.5 months and Jayda for 9 months, on charges of religiously aggravated harassment. The pair handed out leaflets and posted videos against Muslim defendants in trial for child rape who were convicted. The pair targeted people for harassment at their homes who they thought were connected to the rape trial, but the homeowners were not linked to the case. While Britain First uses harassment tactics, the jail sentences are excessive and the rights of the rapists were better protected than the citizens who spoke out against them.
