

Germany: One-Third of Migrants Arrive Covertly

A member of German parliament discovered that nearly one-third of adult migrants are arriving in Germany by plane from Turkey, Greece, and Italy. This violates the 'Dublin Regulation' agreed to by these countries that requires asylum seekers to apply for protections in the first country where they land. Since there are no flights from the countries-of-origin of these immigrants, they had to board aircraft in countries into which they migrated first. There also is the question of who is paying for their plane tickets and putting money into their pockets? These questions are leading to the discovery of massive deception and corruption. -GEG

Nearly one-third of adult migrants arriving in Germany are traveling there by airplane, according to discoveries made by a member of parliament.

Leif-Erik Holm is an economist serving in the Bundestag as a representative of the Alternative for Deutschland (AfD) party, and upon receiving data from the federal government, he revealed findings that would indicate a possible "outrageous scandal" if they are accurate.

After dodging similar requests from media outlets, officials were forced to produce some information in response to MP Holm's inquiry.

In a reportedly "strikingly evasive" reply, a state secretary eventually informed Holm that "slightly less than a third of the respondents questioned according to their information arrived by plane to Germany.”

“The Federal Government must clear up completely, whether the data of the asylum applicants apply and from where exactly they enter Germany, and they have to turn this off if necessary,” Holm told Junge Freiheit. “If in fact every third asylum seeker arrives by plane to Germany, that would be an outrageous scandal. I wonder how that’s possible with the rules in force.”

Holm leveled heavy accusations at the German government, asserting that officials actively “cover up, obfuscate and veil the consequences of its catastrophic asylum policy.”

According to European Union laws established in the Dublin Regulation, asylum seekers must apply for protections in the first member state in which they arrive, and await a decision.

Because Germany shares no external borders with any of the countries from which over one million migrants have arrived in recent years, Germans have been forced to speculate about how these ‘refugees’ have managed to reach their borders and subsequently stay in the country.

It had been generally accepted that most or all migrants arrive by land, having traveled first through countries like Turkey, Greece, Italy, and the Balkans.

However, in 2016, unconfirmed reports began circulating that migrants were being covertly flown into Germany under cover of darkness.

“Speculation has been rife that the country is ushering in thousands of migrants via Cologne Bonn Airport, fuelled by the fact every night numerous planes from Turkey are landing,” reported Express at the time.
