

Learn How War Is Used To Clear The Books Following A Financial Crash

written by GEG | March 12, 2018

Stefan Molyneux explains how the US government's addiction to spending now can only be stopped through collapse followed by war. This is a brilliant overview of history and human nature as they relate to the economic collapse of unrestrained governments. There is no way to adequately summarize this presentation except to say that it is loaded with hard data and sound logic that leads to the conclusion that the world is headed inexorably into economic collapse and war. Molyneux's analysis may be wrong, but it should not be dismissed as impossible. [Well worth watching in its entirety.] -GEG