

Brooklyn: Leader of Voluntary Jewish Civil Patrol Charged with Rape of 15-Year Old Girl

Brooklyn: Jacob Daskal, the highly politically connected leader of Boro Park Shomrim, a volunteer Jewish civilian patrol that adheres to Jewish law, is accused of raping a 16-year-old girl over a period of several months. [The article does not clarify if the rape was statutory or coercive.] The Shomrim has been accused of bribing police to issue gun licenses, covering up crimes of domestic violence, and violent beatings. -GEG

From the NY Post 5/10/2018:

“Insiders say Daskal has friends in high places and claim his political largesse got him in tight with elected officials.

“He’s a well-connected guy. In Borough Park, he’s a big deal – a macher,” or important person, said one insider who requested anonymity, noting that Daskal is particularly close to retiring Assemblyman Dov Hikind.

“It comes a complete shock. This is nuts. Yanky Daskal has grandkids.”

Campaign-finance records show he wasn’t afraid to splash cash for his favorite political causes.

He dropped $1,000 on Mayor de Blasio's 2009 public-advocate bid and has given nearly $9,300 to Hikind since 2004, according to state campaign-finance records listing his name and Borough Park address.

He tossed $1,000 to corrupt former state Sen. Malcolm Smith in 2008 and has lavished a little over $4,500 into state Sen. Simcha Felder's campaign coffers since 2007, the records show.

Someone named Jacob Daskal also gave $250 to de Blasio's 2003 City Council campaign, according to city records listing a name but no address.

Meanwhile, pols were funneling cash into the Boro Park Shomrim volunteer safety group over which he presided.

The organization reaped $425,708 in eight city contracts alone between 2010 and 2015, according to Politico New York."

From the NY Post 5/13/2018:

"Does New York City – with its once-unimaginable record-low crime rates – still need private (but city-funded) citizen-patrol groups?"

The question became more pressing with the arrest Thursday of Jacob Daskal, politically wired president and co-founder of the Boro Park Shomrim, on charges he repeatedly raped a 15-year-old girl over a period of months in his home.

It's not the Brooklyn group's first brush with the law, either.

Last year, Shomrim official Alex "Shaya" Lichtenstein was sentenced to 32 months in prison for bribing cops on a regular basis to get hard-to-obtain full-carry handgun permits for paying clients, including some with criminal records.

The group itself has been accused of violently beating suspects it apprehends. And Daskal reportedly was able to arrange for Orthodox Jews arrested for minor crimes to avoid being booked through the system.”

Germany: Far-Left Antifa Published Riot Instructions for Upcoming AfD Conference

A German far-left Antifa group released a booklet on riot techniques to be used at the June conference for the populist Alternative for Germany (AfD) party. Antifa recommends burning cars, attacking war memorials, and targeting political party offices for property destruction. Additional targets for the conference at the end June include police stations, army barracks, and even a city library.

German alt-left Antifa extremists have released a new instructional booklet ahead of the populist Alternative for Germany (AfD) conference in Augsburg which teaches and encourages “riot tourists” to burn cars, attack war memorials, and target political party offices.

The 44-page booklet was posted to the notorious Indymedia web platform that previously hosted the now-banned Linksunten website, which also posted tutorials on sabotage and other acts of terror and violence following last year's riots at the G20 meeting in Hamburg.

Within the booklet, titled "Augsburg for Riot Tourists", and on an external blog site mirroring the guide that features the Antifa logo, the far-left extremist group states: "We are calling for a revolt against the German collective on the occasion of the AfD party conference in Augsburg."

Other targets listed include "collaborators" such as police stations, army barracks, and even a city library, all with helpful symbols identifying whether the locations have comprehensive security coverage, or have CCTV cameras watching them.

The group also warns fellow extremists to wear gloves, even when picking up rocks to throw at buildings or people noting that it is possible their fingerprints could be lifted from the stones.

The instructions for violence are credited to "Prisma", a notorious far-left terror manual that calls on extremists to commit violence and shows detailed diagrams on building firebombs, sabotaging infrastructure, and avoiding police. The blog site also provides direct links to the Prisma terror document.

Far-left extremists have caused violence at previous AfD conferences including last year in which police in Hannover deployed water cannons against them.

Read full article here...

31 Bishops from Chile Offer Resignation to Pope Francis over Sex-Abuse Scandal

Rome: All 31 active bishops from Chile signed a document offering to resign after Pope Francis shamed them for ignoring or covering up sex abuse in the local churches. The Pope blamed the sex abuse on the fact that it was the practice of many bishops to send homosexual priests to teach at seminaries. The Pope himself has been implicated in the scandal because he appointed Juan Barros to the office of bishop over the objections of his victims. It is not expected that the Pope will accept the offer of resignation. -GEG

In the biggest shake-up yet in the Catholic Church's long-running sex abuse scandal, every active Chilean bishop offered to resign Friday over what Pope Francis said was their "grave negligence" in investigating abuse and protecting children.

The bishops announced at the end of an emergency Vatican summit that all 31 active bishops in Rome had signed a document offering to resign.

Francis can accept the resignations, reject them or delay a decision, and the bishops remain in place until he acts. But the symbolic significance of an entire national bishops' conference resigning en masse because they covered-up for pedophiles marked a historic moment in the decades-long saga.

"We want to ask forgiveness for the pain we caused victims, the pope, the people of God and our country for the grave errors and omissions that we committed," the bishops said in a statement.

They thanked victims for their "perseverance and courage," for having continued to denounce crimes and cover-up by the church despite "the incomprehension and attacks from the same church community."

It marked the first known time that an entire national bishops conference had offered to step down over a scandal, and laid bare the devastation the abuse crisis has caused the Catholic Church in Chile and beyond.

"They didn't know how to protect the weakest, exposed them to abuse and then impeded justice," said Jose Andres Murillo, one of those abused and one of the main whistleblowers in the case. "For this, they deserve only to go."

Calls for mass resignations had mounted after details emerged of the contents of a 2,300-page Vatican report into the Chilean scandal leaked early Friday. Francis had cited the report in footnotes of a 10-page document that he handed over to each Chilean bishop at the start of the summit.

In those footnotes, Francis accused the bishops of destroying evidence of sex crimes, pressuring church investigators to minimize abuse accusations and showing "grave negligence" in protecting children from pedophile priests.

"No one can exempt himself and place the problem on the shoulders of the others," Francis wrote in the document, which was published by Chilean T13 television and confirmed as accurate Friday by the Vatican.

In a statement in response, the Chilean bishops said the contents of the document were "absolutely deplorable" and showed an "unacceptable abuse of power and conscience," as well as sexual abuse.

“We want to re-establish justice and contribute to the reparation of the damage we caused,” they said.

Francis had summoned the 34 bishops to Rome after admitting that he had made “grave errors in judgment” in the case of Bishop Juan Barros, who is accused by victims of Chilean priest, the Rev. Fernando Karadima, of witnessing and ignoring their abuse.

Read full article here...

France: A Dozen Teenagers Brutally Killed a Migrant Citizen in Broad Daylight

A group of a dozen teenagers beat a man to death in broad daylight in a high crime urban area where many migrants reside in Southern France. The victim was a 32-year old drug dealer who was known to be violent and migrated to France from West Africa. It is unknown whether the children were migrants; they averaged in age from 12 to 14 and were reported to be troublemakers. Three people have been arrested.

Read full article here...

NGOs Are the Deep State's Trojan Horses

James Corbett compared non-governmental organizations (NGOs) to a Trojan Horse whose agents can covertly enter a country and scheme for its downfall within the target's borders. Many NGOs do perform humanitarian duties, but some NGOs are tools controlled by deep state agencies like USAID. George Soros has used NGOs to sow the seeds of discontent and pit groups against each other to spark revolutions in order to destabilize governments, which known as 'Color Revolutions'.

Swedish Man Faces 2 Years in Prison for Saying Somalis Have Low IQ

A 60-year-old man from Sweden is facing two years in prison for posting a message on Facebook that read, "Only every fifth Somalis have IQ over 70." The prosecutor claims that the post targets a protected group of people based on their national origin and is therefore hate speech. The case is yet another example of what is now being referred to as "hate facts," statements that are generally true yet are negative towards politically protected groups. -GEG

A man in Sweden faces up to two years in prison over a Facebook post in which he said Somalis typically have low IQs, despite technically being correct.

The 60-year-old from Kungsängen posted, "Only every fifth Somalis have IQ over 70," on a Facebook page called 'Stand Up For Sweden' in September last year.

According to prosecutor Paulina Brandberg, the post targets a protected group of people based on their national origin and is therefore hate speech.

The defendant has neither denied or acknowledged the crime, but could face up to two years in jail on top of a fine after he was charged by the Attunda District Court.

According to British Professor Richard Lynn and his Finnish colleague Tatu Vanhanen, who published a book called IQ and the Wealth of Nations, which made a correlation between IQ rates and economic prosperity, the defendant is technically correct since the average IQ in Somalia is 70.

The IQ Research website lists the average IQ in Somalia as 68.

The case is yet another example of what is now being referred to as "hate facts," statements that are generally true yet are negative towards minorities or other ethnic groups.

Read full article here...