

Canada: Leftist PM Justin Trudeau Cracks Down on Immigration After Migrants Flood Borders

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau responded to Trump's first travel ban in January 2017 by tweeting, "To those fleeing persecution, terror & war, Canadians will welcome you, regardless of your faith. Diversity is our strength #WelcomeToCanada." Since that time, in the intervening 15 months, 26,000 people have migrated to Canada, yet he blames the US. Now he is trying to renegotiate the 'Safe Third Country Agreement' that requires asylum seekers to apply for asylum in the first country that they entered.

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau appears to be executing a full 180 degree turn on immigration policy following the recent dramatic increase in illegal immigration at Canada's southern border.

Canada is reportedly attempting to renegotiate the "Safe Third Country Agreement," which would require all asylum seekers who approach formal border-crossings (going either direction) at the U.S.-Canada border to apply for asylum in the country they entered first.

Trudeau responded to questions during a parliamentary session on Tuesday, saying that negotiations with the United States had thus far been “unfruitful.”

In the past 15 months alone, Canada has seen an influx of more than 26,000 illegal immigrants – some of whom have told officials that President Trump’s stance on illegal immigration was what drove them across the border to the north.
