Thousands attended the wake of the 15-year-old boy who was brutally beaten and stabbed to death by a gang of men outside of a Bronx bodega last week, in what police are saying is a case of mistaken identity regarding a sex tape.

Family, friends and strangers gathered to mourn Lesandro 'Junior' Guzman-Feliz Monday as the innocent teen's mother Leandra Feliz wore a t-shirt with her son's face on it and thanked everyone for attending, saying that her 'heart is broken'.

'He was a sweet kid with a very good heart,' she said to throngs of mourners who wrapped around two blocks as she and his father held a sign that read 'Save our Streets' '#JusticeforJunior' and '#StoptheViolence'.

The service comes as new surveillance video from inside the bodega emerged showing the teen's final moments as he returns to the store he was originally dragged from and begs for help before being kicked out by employees.
