

The Koch Brothers, Mega-Donors to the GOP, Threaten to Support Democrats If Republicans Don't Support Open Borders

GOP mega-donor Koch brothers are threatening to support Democrats in the midterm if their Republican opponents oppose Open Borders and job-killing 'free trade' deals that benefit multinational corporations. Most recently, the head of a Koch organization said it was "unacceptable" for Trump and Republicans to ever support reducing immigration to America—where more than 1.5 million foreign nationals are admitted every year. Ironically, a majority of conservatives now oppose ALL immigration. Under pressure from the Kochs, Representative Kevin Yoder (R-KS) and Chairman of the GOP-majority House Appropriations Committee voted in favor of new asylum rules hidden in a Homeland Security spending bill that would give at least 32-million Central Americans the right to migrate to the US. -GEG

Pro-mass immigration GOP mega-donor billionaire Koch brothers are threatening to support Democrats who push for open borders and multinational free trade in the upcoming midterm elections.

During a conference with millionaire and billionaire donors, officials with the Kochs' network of organizations said that they would gladly put funding in the pockets of Democrats so long as they support aspects of their agenda, which include promoting mass immigration and job-killing free trade deals.

"I know this is uncomfortable," Americans for Prosperity CEO Emily Seidel told donors, according to CNBC. "If you are a Democrat and stand up to Elizabeth Warren to corral enough votes for financial reform that breaks barriers for community banks and families, you're darn right we will work with you."

"If you are a Republican who sits on the committee that wrote the worst spending bill in our country's history and you voted for it, you're darn right we will hold you accountable," Seidel continued.

Charles Koch also threatened the GOP by hinting that he would fund Democrats in the midterm elections, telling the media, "I don't care what initials are in front or after somebody's name."

As Breitbart News reported, the Koch brothers and their network of organizations have been on a campaign over the last few years to oppose President Trump's popular plan to reduce legal immigration levels to raise the wages of America's working and middle class.

Most recently, the head of a Koch organization said it was "unacceptable" for Trump and Republicans to ever support reducing immigration to the country—where more than 1.5 million foreign nationals are admitted every year—even though a majority of conservatives oppose all immigration.

On trade, the Koch networks have launched a million dollar ad campaign to oppose Trump's popular tariffs to protect American jobs and industry that have brought jobs back to steel towns and have successfully led to the European Union conceding to drop trade barriers for U.S. companies.

In May, the Koch networks sent out mailers thanking Democrat lawmakers for pushing open borders policies, as Breitbart News reported. The Koch mailers, revealed by NPR, thank Rep. Raul Ruiz (D-CA), Rep. Pete Aguilar (D-CA), Sen. Chris Coons (D-DE), Rep. Ben Ray Luján (D-NM), and Rep. Michelle Lujan Grisham (D-NM) for their push for open borders and amnesty for illegal aliens.

Read full article here..