

South Africa: Trump Responds While Mainstream Media Covers Up Murders and Land Expropriation of White Farmers

President Trump responded to Tucker Carlson's story about land expropriation without compensation in South Africa by tweeting that he has asked Secretary of State Mike Pompeo to closely study South Africa's land and farm seizures and the large scale killing of farmers. The State Department already said that it was doing that, so Trump's request, although sounding like it might bring a shift in State Department policy, was meaningless. Even though the country has not yet changed its constitution, it already has begun taking farm land without compensation. The constitutionality is of little importance to dictators. -GEG
