

UK Prime Minister Theresa May, While Visiting South Africa, Announced Support for Land Expropriation from White Farmers

British Prime Minister Theresa May, while on a visit to South Africa to cement trade ties with African nations, said the UK supports land reform (expropriation) of land owned by white farmers if it is “legal and transparent and generated through a democratic process.” In other words, the UK supports theft if there is a law that authorizes it and the majority approves of it. She said that this land theft is an opportunity to “unlock investment” for the country. -GEG
