

Shocking Video – Platoons of Heavily Armed Men Easily Walk into US from Mexico.

Men in camouflage and carrying large packs and 'assault rifles' were video recorded illegally entering the US at the Chilton Ranch in Arizona. This area is known as ground zero for illegal entry into the US for drug cartels, smugglers, and illegal aliens. Jim Chilton, 79, is a fifth-generation cattleman who has repeatedly warned the government not to leave long stretches of the southwest border secured by nothing more than a barbed-wire fence. Concealed cameras along trails through his 5,000 acre ranch prove the point better than words. A U.S. Border Patrol agent was shot by smugglers in a remote section of Chilton's ranch in June 2018. [In spite of brave talk in Washington DC about stopping illegal immigration, the government has done nothing to stop this armed invasion. Why do we have soldiers in over a hundred countries in the world but none at the Chilton ranch?] -GEG

Video footage from a ranch in Arizona shows thousands of illegal aliens marching into the United States uninterrupted because there is no border wall, nor border patrol, to stop them.

Jim Chilton, 79, owns a 50,000-acre ranch situated on the U.S.-Mexico border, which has become a hotspot for illegals crossing into the country.

Security camera footage from as recently as 2018 shows individuals in camouflage toting large backpacks and in some cases what appears to be military-style assault rifles walking through his ranch into the States incident free. They even attach the military-style assault rifles to horses.

Certain shots show illegal immigrants pouring into the country literally by the dozen.

According to The Los Angeles Times, Chilton carries a pistol and a rifle while tending his cattle to “ward off the drug smugglers who encroach on his land.”

German Press Invented Story that ‘Neo-Nazis’ Were Hunting Migrants

Several weeks ago, a German man was stabbed to death by a group of migrants in Chemnitz, in eastern Germany, which triggered protests against mass immigration and migrant crime. A march was blocked by Antifa, and the confrontation had to be broken up. A video was posted online showing a local man chasing a migrant and yelling slurs at him. Angela Merkel, along with other leftist politicians and the international media, used this video to condemn demonstrators as racists and Nazis. They characterized the protest as the "Chemnitz Hunt" on migrants, and called for leftists to rally in opposition. Locals say the man who was chased had spat upon the site of the murder and insulted the German townfolk. Hans-Georg Maaben, President of the Office for the Protection of the Constitution, exposed the false claims against Chemnitz protesters and said that the lie about hunting down migrants served the purpose of distracting attention from the murder. - GEG

Germany's establishment clearly attempts to hide the truth about two men killed in Chemnitz and Köthen

Daniel H, a 35-year-old German citizen with Cuban roots, was tragically stabbed to death by a group of around 10 people from migrant backgrounds, according to witnesses.

Three people have already been identified. Two of them are Iraqis, one is Syrian. Two should have been deported already.

People in Chemnitz, the Alternative for Germany party, and Pegida called for demonstrations and a silent march to honour the victim, as well as other victims of migrant violence and crime. The march itself was peaceful and protesters were seen marching with portraits of people slain by migrants.

Antifa showed up and blocked the march, a clear violation of German law, but the police did not attempt to move the crowd, and the march had to be broken up later on.

Although the solemn reasons for the march, the event took place peacefully despite the tensions. Many individuals decided to stay in defiance of what they perceived as yet another failure by the state to defend their rights and security as a people. There were, however, reports of separate violent incidents by the police later on.

A video was also posted online in which a local man can be seen chasing another man, who appears to be a migrant, for roughly 3 seconds, while yelling slurs at him.

This, coupled with interviews by Antifa members, were used by the media to turn the event into what the national and even international media called, the “Chemnitz Hunt” on migrants.

People from Chemnitz claimed the man had insulted and spat on the spot where Daniel H. was stabbed to death. Individual reports believe the man to have said words along the lines of “Fuck Germans” or “Shitty Germans”.

Freie Presse, the sole local media corporation in attendance at the event, have come out in defence of Chemnitz, saying nothing resembling a “hunt” took place. The AG office of Saxony further backed up the claims made by the media outlet, reiterating there was no proof of any ‘hunts’ taking place.

However, Merkel and her spokesperson Steffen Seibert saw an opportunity to label Chemnitz and the AfD as Nazis and jumped on it. Even Maaßen the President of the Office for the Protection of the Constitution was forced to come out in defence of Chemnitz after their false claims. He made the following statements:

“There is no evidence that the interview on the Internet about this alleged incident is authentic. After my cautious assessment, there are good reasons that it is targeted misinformation in order to possibly distract the public from the murder in Chemnitz.”

After making those statements, he has been under constant attack by all left-wing parties, the CDU, as well as the media. He might very well lose his position now for speaking out. Instead of proving their claims about “hunts on migrants” high ranking members of the CDU and SPD have demanded proof of the contrary from him and even called for his resignation.

Man Who Allegedly Tried to Attack Congressional Candidate with a Switchblade Was Released on $55,000 Bail

California: Congressional candidate, Rudy Peters, says that Farzad Fazeli approached his campaign booth at the Castro Valley Fall Festival, screaming threats at Peters, and then he threw a coffee cup at the candidate who left his booth, grabbed Fazeli, and threw him to the ground. Fazeli allegedly pulled out a switchblade, but failed to trigger the blade properly. Fazeli's mother, who was not present during the altercation, says her son told her that Peters got physical first. Fazeli was released on $55,000 bail, despite having a prior conviction for a minor assault charge on his record. - GEG

A man was arrested on suspicion of felony assault and other charges after allegedly attempting to stab a Republican congressional candidate with a switchblade over the weekend at in Castro Valley, according to the Alameda County Sheriff's Office.

On Sunday, September 9, at approximately 3:45 p.m., deputies working at the Castro Valley Fall Festival were alerted to a possible knife attack at one of the vendor booths.

Deputies arrived at the booth and made contact with the victim, Republican candidate Rudy Peters, who is running against incumbent Rep. Eric Swalwell (D-Dublin) for the 15th congressional district seat

The Castro Valley News first reported on the attack.

According to witnesses, 35-year-old Castro Valley resident Farzad Fazeli approached Peters at his booth in an aggressive manner and made disparaging, profanity-laced remarks about the Republican party and President Donald Trump.

During the incident, Fazeli allegedly pulled out a switchblade knife and attempted to stab Peters. The knife malfunctioned and the candidate became involved in a physical struggle with Fazeli, according to sheriff's Sgt. Ray Kelly.

The suspect then fled the scene, but was detained a short time later by deputies and was found in possession of a switchblade knife, Kelly said.

Fazeli was arrested for felony assault, criminal threats, brandishing a weapon and possession of a switchblade knife and booked into Santa Rita Jail.

Peters wasn't injured. Fazeli, who lists his occupation as cashier, was booked into Santa Rita Jail in Dublin on suspicion of felony assault, criminal threats, brandishing a weapon and possession of a switchblade knife.

Kelly said the case has been forwarded to the Alameda County District Attorney's Office for charging.

Peters talked to KPIX 5 about the frightening encounter Tuesday.

"He would have stabbed me," Peters said. "I mean, he had it out saying, 'I'm going to kill you MFer! I'm going to kill you!' I could see his thumb trying to get the knife out."

He said the encounters started with verbal threats.

"He picks up a coffee cup to rear back and throw it at us. And I jumped around the table. He throws the coffee cup and misses us. It hits the ground and breaks," remembered Peters. "So I come out and grab him and wrestle him and throw him down to the ground."

He said that was when Fazeli pulled out a knife.

"He's screaming, 'I'll kill you MFer! I'll kill you! I'll kill you!' And he's kind of circling me trying to get the knife out," said Peters Fazeli made his first court appearance Tuesday for possession of a switchblade and threatening to commit great bodily injury or death. But Fazeli's mother and attorney say he is the victim.

"My client at this point was afraid for his life and afraid for his health and safety. And I believe that it is alleged that he pulls out a folded knife. The knife was never opened," argued defense attorney Frederick Remer.

Fazeli's mother Dolly Adams was at the festival at the Democratic booth.

"Mr. Peters got physical first," said Adams.

While she said she didn't see what happened during the altercation, she talked to her son before he was arrested.

"He said that Mr. Peters has taken him by his shoulders and shoved him to the ground. And there was blood on him and blood on his booth," said Green.

Peters said when Fazeli took out the knife, he shielded himself by reaching for one of his election signs for protection.
