

UK School Teacher Blows the Whistle on Targeting of Autistic Children to Become Transgender

A whistleblower at a British school reported that 17 pupils are in the process of changing gender, and that most of them are autistic. The teacher said that vulnerable children with mental health problems were being 'tricked' into believing they are the wrong sex and latch onto the condition as a way of coping with problems caused by autism. Older pupils who changed gender 'groomed' younger, mainly autistic students to follow their example. The teacher believes that most of the children are homosexual, but instead of coming out, they gain popularity by claiming to be transgender. Parents are kept in the dark. In addition, one third of children referred to the UK's Tavistock National Health Service gender identity clinic showed moderate to severe autism, and 150 autistic teenagers were given puberty blocker drugs which stop the body maturing. The UK has socialized medicine that pays for the drugs.

An astonishing 17 pupils at a single British school are in the process of changing gender, The Mail on Sunday can reveal.

Most of the youngsters undergoing the transformation are autistic, according to a teacher there, who said vulnerable children with mental health problems were being 'tricked' into believing they are the wrong sex.

The whistleblower says few of the transgender children are suffering from gender dysphoria – the medical term for someone who feels they were born in the wrong body – but are just easily influenced, latching on to the mistaken belief they are the wrong sex as a way of coping with the problems caused by autism.

Earlier this year, The Mail on Sunday revealed that a third of youngsters referred to the NHS's only gender identity clinic for children showed 'moderate to severe autistic traits'.

It means that 150 autistic teenagers were given puberty blocker drugs which stop the body maturing.

The teacher says she felt compelled to speak out to protect pupils, many of whom she believes could already be taking the powerful drugs and may go on to have life-changing surgery.

She believes schools and some politicians have swallowed 'hook, line and sinker' a politically-correct 'fallacy' peddled by a powerful transgender lobby.

She has asked The Mail on Sunday to conceal her identity for fear of dismissal after almost 20 years as a teacher, But in a shocking interview, the woman, who we shall call Carol, tells how:

She was advised to keep parents and other teachers in the dark if a pupil claimed to be transgender;

Older pupils at her school who changed gender 'groomed' younger, mainly autistic students to do the same;

One autistic teenager is soon to have a double mastectomy;

Pupils who say they were born the wrong sex mimic transgender YouTube stars Carol believes are partly to blame for convincing vulnerable children they have gender dysphoria.

Last night, Conservative MP David Davies said: 'I congratulate this teacher for coming out and telling us what I have long suspected has been going on in schools. It is horrendous that children are being encouraged by other pupils to identify as transgender, particularly if they have autism.

'Parents are not told about this and there is no way of challenging these pupils who are convinced by others that they have a problem they almost certainly do not have. Tragically the end result could be irreversible surgical procedures. This is scandalous.'

The teacher, who has her own child, also believes many of those who say they are the wrong sex are simply gay but would face bullying if they were to 'come out'. By contrast, she says, transgender children at the school are idolised by other pupils.
