

California's New Governor, Gavin Newsom, Moves His Family Away From the City and Avoids Policies He Forces on Others

written by GEG | January 30, 2019

California's new Governor, Gavin Newsom, is a wealthy leftist who avoids living under the policies he forces on others. He has shunned the Governor's mansion, which is walking distance to the state capital in Sacramento, in favor of a $3.7-million home in the suburbs, which requires a 1-hour daily commute with his entourage, thus, increasing his carbon footprint. He has moved to a predominantly white neighborhood, which means his children are deprived of the diversity in Sacramento schools, where children speak 43 languages, and 40% do not speak English at home. -GEG
