

“I’ll Carry Out a Massacre”: Bus Full of Kidnapped Italian Children Set on Fire by Senegalese-Born Driver

su_note note_color="#efela7" text_color="#00000" radius="5"]Milan, Italy: A bus filled with 51 children from a middle school was set on fire by its driver, Ousseynou Sy, a man originally from Senegal but with Italian citizenship. This was done to seek revenge for the migrants who have drowned due to Italy’s blocking migrant boats. Sy rammed cars on a highway before he was stopped by a police blockade from killing the children. Officers broke the glass in the back door of the bus and rescued the children before the flames destroyed the vehicle.

Italy’s Interior Minister Matteo Salvini drew criticism from pro-migrant groups last year when he closed the country’s ports to NGO migrant vessels ferrying mostly North African refugees across the Mediterranean. -GEG[/su_note]

Milan, Italy: A bus filled with 51 children from a middle school was set on fire by its driver, Ousseynou Sy, a man originally from Senegal but with Italian citizenship. This was done to seek revenge for the migrants who have drowned due to Italy's blocking migrant boats. Sy rammed cars on a highway before he was stopped by a police blockade from killing the children. Officers broke the glass in the back door of the bus and rescued the children before the flames destroyed the vehicle.

Italy's Interior Minister Matteo Salvini drew criticism from pro-migrant groups last year when he closed the country's ports to NGO migrant vessels ferrying mostly North African refugees across the Mediterranean. -GEG

Update: The driver, a 47-year-old father of two whose ex-wife is Italian, has been charged with carnage and kidnapping of 51 students, according to the Daily Mail. According to the a police commander, the the driver, Ousseynou Sy, threatened the passengers – “telling them that ‘no one would survive today.” as he commandeered the bus carrying two middle-school classes in Cremona province around 25 miles from Milan.”

Ousseynou Sy, originally Senegalese but with Italian citizenship, stopped the bus he was driving, with two classes of high school students on board.

He was said to have ordered the children's hands to be bound and threatened to kill them and himself during the drive, before setting the vehicle on fire when he was stopped by a police blockade today.

Officers broke the glass in the back door of the bus and got all the passengers to safety without serious injury before the flames destroyed the vehicle, authorities said.

As he was apprehended, the driver said he was protesting migrant deaths in the Mediterranean, Commander Luca De Marchis told Sky TG24. -Daily Mail

An adult was able to make an emergency call, while one of the students called a parent who alerted authorities.

Read full article here...

Mainstream Media Ignores the Mass Murder of Christians Who

Are Viewed As Obstacles to “Progress” in the US

su_note note_color="#efe1a7" text_color="#000000" radius="5"]The mass murder of Christians is being censored by Western media, because those who control mainstream media consider Christians to be an obstacle to “progress”. As a result, most Americans do not know that 4,136 Christians were killed for faith-related reasons last year. In Nigeria, more than 120 Christians have been gunned down or killed with machetes within just the past three weeks, but Breitbart was the only big media outlet to report on it. Many more horrific murders of Christians are taking place across the globe, averaging out to the murder of 11 per day. -GEG[/su_note]

Authored by Michael Snyder via The End of The American Dream blog.

Last week, when a deranged lunatic gunned down dozens of Muslims at two mosques in New Zealand it suddenly became the biggest news story in the world, and rightly so.

It was a major news event, and it needed to be reported. But shouldn't mass killings of Christians be given the same sort of media coverage? Sadly, we all know that doesn't happen. Whenever there is a mass killing of Christians, it is usually entirely ignored by the mainstream media in the United States, and it doesn't take a genius to figure out why this is happening. Those that control the mainstream media consider Christians to be one of the main obstacles to “progress” in this country, and so any story that would put Christians in a positive or sympathetic light simply does not fit any of the narratives that they are pushing.

That number breaks down to an average of 11 per day.

In Nigeria, more than 120 Christians have been gunned down or killed with machetes over the past three weeks, but Breitbart was the only big media outlet to report on it..

As Breitbart News alone reported among major news outlets, Fulani jihadists racked up a death toll of over 120 Christians over the past three weeks in central Nigeria, employing machetes and gunfire to slaughter men, women, and children, burning down over 140 houses, destroying property, and spreading terror.

The New York Times did not place this story on the front page; in fact, they did not cover it at all. Apparently, when assessing "all the news that's fit to print," the massacre of African Christians did not measure up. The same can be said for the Washington Post, the Chicago Tribune, the Detroit Free Press, the LA Times, and every other major paper in the United States.

And of course Breitbart is not exactly "mainstream" media.

So why won't anyone else report on this?

Read full article here...

Nashville Teachers Slam Failed 'Restorative Justice' and Lack of Discipline that Has Led to Chaos, Assaults and Death Threats

su_note note_color="#ef1a7" text_color="#00000" radius="5"]Nashville teachers report chaos and violence is overtaking their classrooms after following policies by the Obama administration to reduce the disproportionate number of suspensions for minority students, mostly by keeping kids in school who don't deserve to be there and disrupt learning for their classmates. Teachers can be penalized for referring students to the principal's office. Students have become emboldened from the lack of consequences for bad behavior, and more students are joining them, causing the problem to spread. Some of the teachers have been injured and have received death threats from students while school administrators ignore the problem. District superintendent Shawn Joseph criticized teachers who want students suspended stating, "Your teachers are sometimes like that gladiator stadium, like they want blood. They want blood and they want you to feed them. They want you to feed them raw meat."[/su_note]

In Nashville, teachers are complaining about chaos in the classroom and they're blaming the district's restorative justice student discipline policies for the mayhem.

A dozen teachers in Metro Nashville Public Schools agreed to discuss rampant student violence in a Teacher Town Hall coordinated by WTVF last weekend that focused on student discipline policies promoted by district superintendent Shawn Joseph.

The policies fall in line with efforts by the Obama administration to reduce the disproportionate number of suspensions for minority students, mostly by keeping kids in school who don't deserve to be there and disrupt learning for their classmates.

In school districts across the country, the federal government encouraged schools to exchange suspensions for talking circles, counseling, or other restorative justice techniques that teach students there's no serious repercussions for bad behavior.

Numerous Nashville teachers who spoke to WTVF described their schools as “total chaos,” with some receiving injuries and death threats from students with no help from administrators.

“I mean, there’s just no accountability for the students,” high school teacher Laura Leonard said.

“Students are in school and they are disruptive and they are running through the halls and they are using profanity and hurting other students,” elementary guidance counselor Constance Wade said.

Students have become so emboldened they’re now verbally abusing school police, prompting the Metro Nashville Police Department to pull three school resource officers from two different schools earlier this month and move them elsewhere to avoid the harassment, The Tennessean reports.

The Teacher Town Hall also comes amid turmoil in the district, with some board members supporting Joseph and others calling for his ouster.

The split has resulted in an online petition urging Nashville board member Fran Bush to resign. Bush was elected in August on her opposition to Joseph’s policies and leadership, according to The

Tennessean.

Read full article here...

New Zealand Declares Massacre Video “Objectionable” and Arrests People Who Share It

`su_note note_color="#ef1a7" text_color="#00000" radius="5"]`Several of the largest ISPs in New Zealand and Australia are using the mosque shooting as a pretext to block access to 4Chan, 8Chan, LiveLeak, Voat, BitChute, Zero Hedge, Dissenter and a number of other sites. A 44-year old owner of an insulation company has been arrested and charged with two counts of distributing objectionable materials for sharing the video, and he is facing 28 years in prison. An 18-year old is also facing charges for sharing the video. Other Kiwis have reportedly lost their jobs for sharing the video with coworkers or viewing it at wor. A woman was reportedly arrested on suspicion of inciting racial disharmony after a hateful message was posted to her Facebook page.`[/su_note]`

The governments of New Zealand, Australia the United Kingdom have unveiled a host of authoritarian censorship measures to punish citizens and prevent them from sharing video of the mass shooting in New Zealand.

Multiple people have been tracked down and placed under arrest for either sharing video of the shooting or speaking positively of the shooting.

Several of the largest ISPs in New Zealand and Australia are using the New Zealand shooting as a pretext to block access to 4Chan, 8Chan, LiveLeak, Voat, BitChute, Zero Hedge, Dissenter and a bunch of other sites.

Telstra, Australia's largest telecom company, announced their censorship effort on Monday, writing: "We've started temporarily blocking a number of sites that are hosting footage of Friday's terrorist attack in Christchurch. We understand this may inconvenience some legitimate users of these sites, but these are extreme circumstances and we feel this is the right thing to do."

Read full article here...

Additional source:

<https://arstechnica.com/tech-policy/2019/03/new-zealand-men-could-get-14-years-for-sharing-massacre-video/>

Democrats Seek to Gain Power by Eliminating the Electoral College, Expanding the Supreme Court, Lowering the Voting Age to 16 and More!

`su_note note_color="#efef1a7" text_color="#00000" radius="5"]Donald Trump's election has convinced many Democrats that our institutions no longer work and must be torched to prevent anyone other than those on the left from holding positions of power. Democrats are proposing to eliminate the electoral college, pack the Supreme Court with additional (Democrat) judges, allowing illegal aliens, violent felons and 16-year olds to vote. Nancy Pelosi wants to "capture" kids in high school. In addition, the have also proposed abolishing the Senate, the border and the First and Second Amendments.[/su_note]`

The electoral college that represent each state's popular vote, and at least a dozen Democrat states are trying to abolish the electoral college in favor of a national popular vote – but they face some large hurdles based on the Constitution...

Four leading Democratic presidential candidates have suggested 'packing' the Supreme Court of the United States and adding more (Democrat) judges. Democrat Cory Booker has also suggested imposing term limits on Supreme Court justices.