Instagram and its parent company, Facebook, banned a number of conservative personalities from its platforms, including Infowars host Alex Jones, Infowars contributor and YouTube star Paul Joseph Watson, journalist and activist Laura Loomer, and Milo Yiannopoulos. Louis Farrakhan was also banned at the same time. Facebook and Instagram promised to remove any Infowars videos, radio segments, and articles posted by another account or page. Any Groups related to the banned figures or Facebook Events promoting them will also be removed. Critics say that this sets a chilling precedent for free speech, it is a formula for censoring not just websites and personalities, but their supporters, and that Facebook is openly punishing and rewarding users for their political opinions.

Israeli Envoy Calls for Criminalizing Anti-Semitism After NY Times Cartoon Upset

Israel's Ambassador to the UN, Danny Danon, responded to the recent synagogue shooting and a NY Times cartoon featuring Trump and Netanyahu by saying that the only way to stop antisemitism is to criminalize it, and that people must be punished if they engage in antisemitism, whether it is by political leaders, editors, policy pundits or college professors. [While there is every reason to insist on punishment of acts of violence, the problem with the cry of antisemitism today is that it has become a ploy to discourage anyone from criticizing the policies of the Israeli government or the policies of the US government that support Israeli policies. It's not ethnic or racial or religious. It's pure politics.] -GEG

The only way to stop antisemitism is to criminalize it, Israel's Ambassador to the UN Danny Danon told reporters in New York on Monday.

"The time for talking and having a conversation is over," Danon said. “What Israel and the Jewish community around the world demand is action – and now.”

Danon, speaking on the sidelines of the United Nations Security Council meeting, said that those who engage in antisemitism “must be punished. Whether it is here at the UN [or by] political leaders, editors, policy pundits or college professors, it does not matter.

“Antisemitism should have no place in our society,” he continued. “Until it becomes criminal, this bigotry will persist; it will fester. It is only a matter of time until it erupts again in violence and bloodshed.”

Danon spoke just two days after a shooter, believed to be a white supremacist, killed one Jewish worshiper and wounded three others at the Chabad synagogue in Poway California. That same weekend, The New York Times published a cartoon widely held to be classically antisemitic. The paper has since apologized. Danon linked the two events with a shooting that occurred at Pittsburgh’s Tree of Life synagogue in October, in which 11 worshipers were killed. “From the Tree of Life synagogue in Pittsburgh to the Chabad synagogue in Poway California, antisemitism is no longer a fringe bigotry in the US,” Danon said. “Then, as now, all the right people are saying all the right things. They express their sympathies and call for an end to this violence and bigotry.

Former Trump Aide Describes Attempt To Seduce Him into Becoming A Liability to the Trump Campaign in 2016

The NY Times reported that a mysterious Turkish woman, Azra Turk, “assisted” the FBI in 2016 to spy on George Papadopoulos, a Trump campaign aid, in an attempt to extract or create information that would damage the campaign. Papadopoulos was suspicious because Turk was supposed to be a liason to a Cambridge college professor who claimed to be interested in an article on an important energy project, yet, she could barely speak English. Her main objective seemed to be to seduce him. When he met with the professor, his main interest was to see if he had any information about Trump’s relation with the Kremlin. The professor was paid more than $1-million dollars by the Obama administration for consultation and services rendered. Papadopoulos served jail time as part of a plea agreement he struck with special counsel Robert Mueller in 2018. -GEG

A mysterious Turkish woman who “assisted” FBI spy Stefan Halper in a London operation targeting Trump campaign aide George Papadopoulos has been revealed as yet another FBI operative sent to spy on the Trump campaign during the 2016 US election, according to the New York Times.

The woman, who went by the name Azra Turk, repeatedly flirted with Papadopoulos during their encounters as well as in email exchanges according to an October, 2018 Daily Caller report, confirmed today by the Times. “Turk,” posed as Halper’s assistant according to the report.

While in London in 2016, Ms. Turk exchanged emails with Mr. Papadopoulos, saying meeting him had been the “highlight of my trip,” according to messages provided by Mr. Papadopoulos.

“I am excited about what the future holds for us :),” she wrote. –New York Times

And as the Times makes clear, “the FBI sent her to London as part of the counterintelligence inquiry opened that summer” to investigate the Trump campaign.

The conversation at a London bar in September 2016 took a strange turn when the woman sitting across from George Papadopoulos, a Trump campaign adviser, asked a direct question: Was the Trump

Ms. Turk went to London to help oversee the politically sensitive operation, working alongside a longtime informant, the Cambridge professor Stefan A. Halper. The move was a sign that the bureau wanted in place a trained investigator for a layer of oversight, as well as someone who could gather information for or serve as a credible witness in any potential prosecution that emerged from the case. —New York Times
