

Why State and Local Governments Are Prevented from Rejecting 5G Wireless

Telecommunications Act of 1996 prevents states and local governments from regulating the placement of any cell towers, regardless of environmental effects, including health problems. The FCC has been captured by the wireless industry and are deceiving the public. However, insurance companies are not fooled by safety reports, funded by the telecom industry, and refuse to offer product liability insurance policies that cover cell phone radiation.