

Chaos In Bolivia After President Morales Resigns, Claims He Was Victim Of A Coup

Bolivia: Socialist President Evo Morales has resigned at the urging of country's military, following weeks of protest over the October election that the opposition claimed was rigged. Morales, the country's first indigenous ruler who has been in power for nearly 14 years, claims he was the victim of a "coup" and faced arrest. Two officials next in line to take over the government also left as the country is in turmoil.

Shortly after the country's military "urged" him to do so, Bolivian President Evo Morales resigned on Sunday to ease violence that has gripped the South American nation since a disputed election last month, but he stoked fears of further unrest in a country that has been paralyzed by weeks of protests after saying he was the victim of a "coup" and faced arrest.

Morales, who has been in power for nearly 14 years, said in televised comments that he would submit his resignation letter to help restore stability, though he aimed barbs at what he called a "civic coup" and later said police planned to arrest him.

“I resign from my position as president so that (Carlos) Mesa and (Luis Fernando) Camacho do not continue to persecute socialist leaders,” Morales said in the televised address naming the leaders of the opposition.

Tucker Carlson on New Racist, Anti-Western Curriculum Being Taught in Schools Across the United States

The left has abandoned education in favor of political propaganda under a program called ‘Deep Equity’ that essentially trains teachers to become activists, pitting groups against each other through a hierarchy of oppression. Tucker says the program instructs that men oppress women, Christianity oppresses Islam, English oppresses Spanish, and white people oppress everyone.

Author heather MacDonald says that the more schools become politicized, the further the decline in basic skills. The West broke away from colonialism and slavery, and it is responsible for bringing the concept of individual rights to the world.

She says there is an emergency in the education system and recommends home schooling children.

Mom Says that Philadelphia District Attorney Larry Krasner, Who Is Implementing George Soros Soft-on-Crime Agenda, Should Be Arrested for Obstruction of Justice in Son's Murder Case

George Soros is transforming the criminal justice system across the US by backing district attorney (DA) prosecutors like Larry Krasner who is soft on crime. Recently, a Sean Schellenger was murdered by Michael White, a bike courier who intervened in a traffic dispute and used a knife to stab Schellenger to death. Prosecutors said that White escalated the confrontation when he pulled a knife. White contended that Schellenger made a racial comment, but none of the witnesses corroborated his claim.

The decedent's mother claims that District Attorney Larry Krasner should be arrested for obstruction of justice because he reduced the charges from first degree murder to third degree murder and then to manslaughter, even though court documents reveal Krasner believed a jury wasn't more likely to convict White of the lesser charge. Mrs. Schellenger said that White's comment on Facebook, "I am going to cut someone," and videos White made before the murder were suppressed and blocked from the trial.

After deliberating for roughly seven hours, a Philadelphia jury found bike courier Michael White not guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of real estate developer Sean Schellenger.

Thursday's decision drew tears from both sides of a packed courtroom and outrage from the Schellenger family as a case fraught with racial tension came to a close.

White is black, and has claimed Schellenger, who was white, used racist language in their July 2018 exchange that ultimately led to Schellenger's death.

Immediately following the verdict, Linda Schellenger, Sean's mother, stood up and told Common Pleas Court Judge Glenn B. Bronson that District Attorney Larry Krasner should be arrested for obstruction of justice.

"He has blood on his hands," she said, referring to Krasner's eleventh-hour decision to reduce the charges filed against White and try him on voluntary manslaughter instead of third-degree murder.

Prosecutors did not address reporters outside the courthouse.

In a statement, Krasner said that his office “remains committed to individual justice, which rejects using people as symbols or stereotypes to serve any other agenda.

“My heart goes out to family and friends of Sean Schellenger, whose pain and trauma are evident even today, and to everyone else who has been affected by this tragedy.”

The verdict follows three days of testimony often before a gallery filled with family members and friends of both men.

Prosecutors argued that White, 22, intentionally killed Schellenger, 37, after threatening him with a jagged, seven-inch knife.

White testified that he stuck the knife into Schellenger’s back in self-defense as Schellenger tried to tackle him. White said he feared for his life after Schellenger told him through gritted teeth that he was going to “beat the black off” him.

After the verdict, Mark Schellenger, Sean’s father, said his son didn’t have “a racist bone in his body.”

“To have him smeared like that just to save a murderer, that’s despicable,” said Mark Schellenger.

Columbia Professor from Romania Left His Tenured Position Because the University Is “On Its Way to Full Blown Communism”

Professor Andrei Serban, an award-winning director originally from Romania, quit his prestigious tenured position at Columbia University because the Ivy League school is “on its way toward full blown communism.” The professor objected to the school’s ban on hiring straight white males, even if they were the most qualified for the job. In addition, he opposed an applicant to the school, a transgender male, who he said was not believable as Juliet. Serban said that he felt that he could not violate his principles.

Pressured to admit transgender student

A Romania-born academic says he recently left his tenured position at Columbia University because the Ivy League school is “on its way toward full blown communism,” according to a Romanian TV interview translated by a Romanian-American immigrant.

Prof. Andrei Serban, an award-winning director, complained about the increasing social justice demands he faced in the theater department in the interview, which aired on Romania’s

TVR1 Oct. 26. One prominent example he gave: pressure to admit a transgender applicant who auditioned as Juliet from “Romeo and Juliet.”

Andy Ionescu, a native Romanian speaker who immigrated to the United States in 1999, told The College Fix in a Twitter message that he translated the interview.

He said it was likely the first time that Serban made his resignation publicly known. Columbia still lists Serban as an active professor. Media relations did not respond to an email from The Fix, and Serban’s department did not return a voicemail. Serban did not respond to an email.

The TV host expresses incredulity at multiple points in the interview, seemingly shocked that the American higher education system is headed toward communism. Serban fled from the ideology, which ruled Romania for much of the 20th century.

Serban says in the interview that after a faculty member retired, the remaining professors in the department were called in to a meeting to discuss a replacement.

It was at this meeting that the dean of the art school told them that there were “too many white professors, too many heterosexual men,” and that it would be best to hire a minority or a woman, or a gay man.

Irish People-Smuggling Gang, Accused in Deaths of 39 Vietnamese Migrants Discovered Suffocated in the Back of a Truck, Has Been Under Investigation for a Year

Essex, England: Last month, 39 migrants from Vietnam, mostly men in their 20's and 30's, were discovered dead from suffocation in the back of a food delivery truck. Maurice Robinson, the 25-year-old driver of the truck, was charged with 39 counts of manslaughter. Robinson is alleged to be a part of a global ring based in Ireland that facilitates the movement of large number of illegal immigrants into the UK, and had been conspiring to traffic people for the last 10 months. A 38-year-old man and a 38-year-old woman from Warrington and a 48-year-old man from Northern Ireland were also arrested.

The Criminal Assets Bureau (CAB), which is responsible for investigating whether financial assets are the proceeds of crime, has investigated this gang over the past year. If Irish authorities thought that the gang were involved in people smuggling, it should have been shut down, which raises questions about the agency's motives for allowing it to continue operating.

An Irish people-smuggling gang suspected of being at centre of the Essex lorry container deaths has been under investigation for a year, it has been claimed.

A specialist financial crime team in the Republic of Ireland have been looking at whether alleged members of the gang have been smuggling cigarettes and alcohol into the UK.

The news will raise questions over how they were able to continue operating and what intelligence was shared with the British authorities.

It emerged as Mo Robinson, the 25-year-old driver of the truck, appeared in court where it was alleged that he is part of a "global ring facilitating the movement of large number of illegal immigrants into the UK" and had been conspiring to traffic people for the last 10 months.

Four suspects, including three women from Nghe An province and one male from Hanoi, were also arrested by Vietnamese authorities investigating smuggling.
