

Martial-Law Lockdown in France: Citizens Must Fill Out a Form Every Time They Leave Their Home

The coronavirus lockdown in France requires citizens to 'show their papers'. They are required to have a form with their name, date of birth, address, and an explanation of why they are on the street. Travel to a workplace is allowed but only if individuals can prove they cannot work from home. Those without paperwork have to complete it on the spot and face fines if found lying about their activities. 100,000 extra police have been deployed to patrol streets and enforce the lockdown. -GEG

The coronavirus lockdown in France literally forces citizens to 'show their papers'; They have to fill out a form explaining why they are outside and present it to police.

A translation of the form posted online shows how citizens have to provide their name, date of birth, address and declare their reason for leaving quarantine.

Travel to a workplace is allowed, but only if the individual can prove they don't have the capacity to work from home.

Other reasons include purchasing "essential necessities in authorized establishments" (how this can be proven is unknown), visiting family for "compelling reasons," assisting vulnerable people and traveling for medical reasons.

There also appears to be an exemption for exercise so long as it takes place locally and not with groups of people.

Videos posted online show people being stopped by police and asked to explain their reason for being outside. Those without paperwork have to fill it in on the spot and face fines of up to $148 if caught lying about their activities.

Italy: New Explosive Information Shows 99% of Those Who Died from Coronavirus Had Other Illnesses

Bloomberg reported that a study by Italy's national health authority examined medical records of about 18% of the country's coronavirus fatalities, and found that all but three victims, or 0.8% of the total, had preexisting illnesses. More than 75% had high blood pressure, about 35% had diabetes and a third suffered from heart disease. The average age of the people who died from the virus in Italy is 79.5 years old. Jon Rappoport stated that the study neglected to include information about treatment with toxic drugs for the prior illnesses. After being diagnosed with coronavirus, chances are they were put on highly toxic antiviral drugs, making the conditions even worse.

A very brief update. Read this carefully. Many people who were diagnosed as “coronavirus cases” in Italy, and then died, were almost certainly put on antiviral drugs. As you’ll see, below, a significant percentage of these people had prior heart conditions or high blood pressure. But at least one of the antiviral drugs, called ribavirin, carries this VERY RELEVANT warning, from cardiosmart.org: “Ribavirin may decrease the number of red blood cells in your body. This is called anemia and it can be life-threatening in people who have heart disease or circulation problems.” High blood pressure is a circulatory problem. Understand? Get it? LIFE-THREATENING. So how many coronavirus patients have been killed by the administering of ribavirin?

And with THAT, let’s jump in...because there’s more. Much more.

For those people who have any belief in the coronavirus...

Here’s the basic situation: the Italian health agencies are reporting escalating COV deaths—big fear-story out front...

But in the background, other Italian government researchers are combing through patient records, to take a much closer look...to see whether people are dying from the virus or other more obvious causes.

Are people dying coincidentally WITH the virus, or BECAUSE OF the virus? Is the virus a mere harmless passenger in the body, or is it the driving force?

The Italian results are astonishing, to understate it by a mile.

Bloomberg News has the story: 3/18, “99 percent of those whose died from virus had other illness, Italy says”:

“More than 99% [!] of Italy’s coronavirus fatalities were people who suffered from previous medical conditions, according to a study by the country’s national health authority.”

“The Rome-based institute has examined medical records of about 18% of the country’s coronavirus fatalities [so far, because it’s slow work], finding that just three victims [!!], or 0.8% of the total, had no previous pathology [disease]. Almost half of the victims suffered from at least three prior illnesses and about a fourth had either one or two previous conditions.”

“More than 75% had high blood pressure, about 35% had diabetes and a third suffered from heart disease.”

“The average age of those who’ve died from the virus in Italy is 79.5 [!!!!]. As of March 17, 17 people under 50 had died from the disease. All of Italy’s victims under 40 have been males with serious existing medical conditions.”

BANG.

Average age of those who’ve died: 79.5. Are you kidding? Lots of prior medical conditions, weakened immune systems, and what this emerging study isn’t saying: all these people had obviously been treated for those prior conditions with toxic medical drugs. Furthermore, once they’d been diagnosed with coronavirus, chances are many of them were put on highly toxic antiviral drugs. Thus delivering the final blow.

Imagining the coronavirus was the CAUSE of death would be a ridiculous fantasy. But these people are counted as “coronavirus deaths” by the other Italian reporting agencies, who are jacking up the numbers.

Does this remind you of any other reports I’ve been detailing?

The elderly people with obvious prior diseases who died in Australia; and the elderly people who were diagnosed as coronavirus cases in the state of Washington—all living in a long-term-care nursing home?

Getting the picture? This death-numbers con—aside from covering up the real causes of death, including MEDICAL—is the forward spear being used to justify locking down and wrecking economies all over the world right now, and that means attacking the people in any way connected to those economies who have to work to make a living.

Migrants Riot at Refugee Camp in Germany, Display ISIS Flags After They're Put Under Coronavirus Quarantine

Migrants housed at a refugee camp in Germany began rioting, then threatened to burn down the facility, and subsequently tried to escape after they were put under a coronavirus quarantine. After one migrant tested positive for coronavirus at the facility in Suhl, Thuringia, a quarantine was ordered for the other 533 residents, and the camp was sealed off.

Migrants housed at a refugee camp in Germany began rioting, displayed the ISIS flag and subsequently tried to escape after they were put under a coronavirus quarantine.

After a migrant tested positive for coronavirus at the facility in Suhl, Thuringia, a quarantine was ordered for the other 533 residents and the camp was sealed off.

“But the measure, which in times of Corona seems not at all unusual, apparently drove the asylum seekers to a fury,” reports Compact Online. “Some of them started rioting and prevented inmates from entering the dining hall in order to force a hunger strike. They are said to have tried to leave the facility through the sewers to get to the nearby town.”

According to police spokesman Wolfgang Nicola, the migrants then gathered at the front gate and began threatening to burn down the facility while displaying ISIS flags.

Why they even have possession of ISIS flags in the first place is shocking.

50 police officers were dispatched to the scene to quell the riots. The same migrant camp was also the scene of riots back in 2015 in response to a man tearing pages out of the Koran.

“The danger that Corona will also break out in other shelters is omnipresent, a further restriction of public life is to be expected,” states the report. “It is hard to imagine that the capacities of the security forces and medical staff are sufficient to keep at bay angry illegal immigrants who do not want to comply with the protective measures against the spread of COVID-19.”

Turkish Human Traffickers Jailed for Killing Boy Whose Drowning Sparked 2015 Migrant Crisis in Europe

Three Turkish men who were said to have been part of a human trafficking ring, have been sentenced for the killing of Aylan Kurdi, the Syrian toddler whose drowning was the catalyst for the 2015-16 migrant crisis. Distressing images of Aylan's lifeless body on a Turkish beach, after the smuggler's boat sank attempting to transport him to Europe, were widely disseminated by the media that used the tragedy to shame Europe into opening its borders. Aylan's father, Abdullah Kurdi, initially said Western governments were responsible for his son's death, claiming they refused to accept them as asylum seekers. Abdullah, who also lost his wife and Aylan's brother on the voyage, was later identified as a human smuggler and the "captain" of the boat. -GEG

Three Turkish men have been sentenced for the killing of Aylan Kurdi, the Syrian toddler whose drowning was the catalyst for the 2015-16 migrant crisis.

Bodrum High Criminal Court, Mugla, sentenced Cebraail E., Ecevit Bulent G, and Ali Can S. to 125 years each for the crime of "killing with eventual intent", according to a CNN, citing local state-run media.

They are said to have been part a human trafficking ring, and to have been sentenced only after the security forces hunted them down to Turkey's southern province of Adana after an attempt to flee from their trial.

Distressing images of Aylan's lifeless lying on a Turkish beach after the smuggler boat attempting to transport him to Europe sank were widely disseminated by both print and broadcast media, and have since been repurposed into grotesque art installations, public sculptures, graffiti, and costumed protests.

In 2015 the images a powerful tool for anti-borders activists, who used them to stampede European leaders led by Germany's Angela Merkel to adopt the open door policy which precipitated the migrant crisis which continues down to the present day.

While traffickers have now been convicted of Aylan's killing, his father, Abdullah Kurdi – who had been living in Turkey in safety and receiving financial assistance from Canada-based relations for three years before he made the fateful decision to attempt a sea crossing to Europe – initially said Western governments were responsible, having refused to accept them as asylum seekers.

Abdullah, who also lost his wife and Aylan's brother on the voyage, was himself accused of being the "captain" of the boat and a people-smuggler by other passengers.

Children's Health Defense vs. Federal Communication Commission in 5G Lawsuit

1. Last month, the Children's Health Defense, headed by Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., brought legal action against the FCC, which is responsible for regulating the safety of wireless technology. The reason for the action is that the agency has refused to update its 25 -year-old guidelines, written in 1996, that protects only against thermal damage from wireless radiation. They do not address the issue of non-thermal biological damage, which is where the greatest concern is today. The FCC's obsolete guidelines have enabled the proliferation of new, high-frequency 5G radiation without any knowledge of its potential damage to humans. -GEG

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.'s Children's Health Defense Submitted Historic Case Against U.S. Government for Wireless Harms

CHD Chairman, Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., will lead the legal team with seasoned telecommunications and administrative law attorney Scott McCollough.

Washington, DC—Children's Health Defense (CHD) is leading a historic legal action against the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) for its refusal to review their 25 year old guidelines, and to promulgate scientific, human evidence-based radio frequency emissions (“RF”) rules that adequately protect public health from wireless technology radiation. The Petition contends the agency’s actions are capricious and not evidence-based. The Petition was filed on 2/2/2020 in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

The Petitioners include parents of children injured by wireless devices, a mother whose son died from a brain tumor from cell tower exposure, physicians who see the epidemic of sickness in their clinics and Professor David Carpenter, a renowned scientist.

“This action represents the first time in 25 years that we finally can expose the FCC fecklessness in court, and give those who have been injured by the FCC’s disregard for human health a voice,” says Dafna Tachover, CHD’s Director of Stop 5G & Wireless Harms.

In 1996, the FCC, responsible for regulating the safety of wireless technology, adopted guidelines which only protect consumers from thermal levels of wireless harm, ignoring substantial evidence of profound harms from non-thermal levels. The FCC hasn’t reviewed its guidelines since, despite clear scientific evidence and growing rates of RF related sickness.

In 2012, the General Accountability Office published a report recommending that the FCC re-assess its guidelines. As a result, in 2013, the FCC opened docket 13-84 asking for public comment. Despite overwhelming evidence in support of new rules submitted by hundreds of individuals and scientists, the FCC did nothing. On December 4, 2019, the FCC closed the docket and affirmed the adequacy of its guidelines without proper assessment. CHD’s action challenges that FCC decision.

The FCC’s obsolete guidelines and the false sense of safety they provide enabled the uncontrolled proliferation of wireless technology and the ongoing deployment of 5G, which will exponentially increase exposure to this harmful radiation.

CHD is a non-profit organization dedicated to ending the epidemic of children's chronic health conditions. The organization recognizes that wireless technology radiation is a contributing factor to the exponential increase in sickness among children.

CHD's Dafna Tachover, Talks About 5G Dangers With RT America—

Critics allege that corporate power and control over the institutions like the FCC have led to the suppression of the science of wireless technology and the risk it poses to public health. (FCC has refused to review its obsolete health guidelines ignoring the ill-effects of 5G.) Dafna Tachover, senior attorney and director of the 5G program at Children's Health Defense joins RT America's Michele Greenstein (in for Rick Sanchez) to share her expertise.

Children's Health Defense joined by parents of children who have become sick and their physicians, sued the FCC for its refusal to review its obsolete health guidelines. Anyone can donate to help us with the lawsuit at www.ChildrensHealthDefense.org/donate. Choose 5G on the dropdown menu.

Robert Kennedy Jr.'s Legal Team Sues FCC – The team includes RFK, Jr., IRREGULATORS' Attorney Scott W. McCollough & Dafna Tachover, CHD's Director of Stop 5G & Wireless Harms

Robert Kennedy, Jr., Chairman of Children's Health Defense (CHD), is committed to be proactive on the concerns regarding excessive exposure of our children to 5G and wireless radiation. To fulfill this promise, CHD submitted a lawsuit on February 2, 2020 against the FCC for its December 4, 2019 decision to decline to review its 1996 guidelines, and for its determination that the guidelines are protective of human health.

The Dec. 4 determination provides a rare opportunity to sue the FCC and expose its disregard for public health that has been causing so many injuries and deaths, including among children. We will be representing the many children who have been injured. This is the opportunity we have been waiting for; a successful lawsuit on this will be a game changer.

To have the best chances of succeeding, we have assembled an ideal team of Attorneys to lead this case! Each one brings different strengths to the case:

Robert F. Kennedy Jr., CHD's Chairman, is a leading Environmental Attorney who has been involved with many groundbreaking lawsuits including the recent successful cases against Monsanto. He was a senior attorney for the NRDC and now leading cases for the protection of children's health rights.

Scott W. McCollough is the Attorney who is representing the IRREGULATORS in their lawsuit against the FCC, a case that will help expose a multi-billion-dollar fraud by Telecom companies. Scott has decades of experience as a Telecommunications and Administrative Law Attorney, leading the type of lawsuits we are submitting against the FCC.

Dafna Tachover is an expert on wireless and 5G health effects and has recently been brought on board at CHD to spearhead the Stop 5G effort. Dafna brings specialized knowledge and experience for this case. She is an Attorney, and holds a MBA, and has a Telecommunications background. She has been involved in cases focusing on wireless harms including a Supreme Court case in Israel against Wi-Fi in schools, a case that led to the first limitations on Wi-Fi worldwide!

We need your help to raise $100,000 to fund this effort. We hope that you will support this rare chance to take action against the FCC. Any donation would be helpful.

About The Case

On December 4, 2019, the FCC adopted an order affirming the adequacy of their 1996 wireless radiation exposure safety guidelines. These guidelines are at the core of the fraud perpetrated on the public that wireless technology is safe. Their guidelines ignore the overwhelming evidence of harm, scientific and human. By adopting and maintaining irrelevant guidelines, the FCC has enabled and forced the uncontrolled proliferation of wireless technology and now 5G. This has led to a growing epidemic of sickness among children and adults, and it has caused harm to animals, plants and the ecosystem at large.

In 2012, the General Accountability Office of Congress published a report, recommending that the FCC reassess its 1996 guidelines. As a result, in 2013, the FCC opened docket 13-84 asking for public comment. This docket was open for 6 years. On December 4, 2019, the FCC officially closed the docket and affirmed the adequacy of its guidelines without proper assessment.

Now that the docket is closed, we finally have an opportunity to expose the FCC's fraud by suing the FCC under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). The petition will ask the court to set aside the FCC order, asserting that the order is arbitrary, capricious and an abuse of discretion. The case had to be submitted by February 3rd.

This action is the only available avenue to legally attack the FCC and to expose the fraud. We hope you can help us create change!
