

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio Threatens $1000 Fines for Violating Social Distance

New York Mayor de Blasio, who says the city will remain closed until July or August, is calling for people to snitch on those who are not social distancing and says this is needed in “wartime” with an invisible enemy. He is asking people to send in photos and locations of any violations they see so police can respond immediately. He threatened $1,000 fines for those who fail to obey. “The folks who still don’t get it are gonna have to pay a price,” he said. [We wonder what will happen in the future when everyone realizes that de Blasio is the one who still doesn’t get it. When the price of lost jobs and massive vaccine injuries is added up, is he “gonna have to pay a price?” This nonsense will not stop until politicians, scientists-for-hire, and fake-news reporters are held personally responsible for their deeds.] -GEG

Mayor Bill de Blasio doubled down on his controversial push to get New Yorkers to rat on their neighbors who are not social distancing – insisting it was needed in “wartime” with an invisible enemy.

“In war times, in a time when people’s lives are threatened ... I’m sorry, this is not snitching, this is saving lives,” Hizzoner said of his “New Squeal” push for New Yorkers to snap photos of those gathering in public.

“You’ve got to do it,” he said, insisting it was the only way of “protecting your own family” and fellow Gothamites.

“When we were threatened with terrorism, no one doubted that it was right if you saw something to call it in immediately,” he said of suspicious behavior.

“This is just the same reality, we just have a different enemy – an enemy you can’t see, but an enemy that has taken so many lives,” he said.

“We need those photos. We need those locations so we can enforce right away.”

The mayor conceded that staying inside was only going to get harder with the arrival of gorgeous Springtime temperatures – but threatened to dole out $1,000 fines for those he failed to heed social distancing guidelines.

“If you don’t understand it yet, we’re gonna have to get tougher and tougher,” he said.

As of Sunday, the city had issued a total 244 summonses and fines of up to $1,000 thanks to “proactive enforcement efforts” – not including extra ones from the NYPD in response to 311 or 911 calls, a City Hall spokesperson told The Post.

On Sa
tu
rd
ay
al
on
e,
th
e
NY
PD

sa
id
it
is
su
ed
60
su
mm
on
se
s an d
ma
de
tw
o
ar
re
st
s
du
ri ng
pa
tr
ol
s
on
re
st
au
ra
nt
s,
ba

rs
an d
su
pe
rm
ar
ke
ts
to
en
su
re
so
ci
al
di
st
an
ci
ng
wa
s
be
in g
ma
in
ta
in
ed
,
th
e
fo
rc
e

sa

id

.

De Blasio noted that the fines were a hefty blow for many in the middle of an economic crisis.

Read full article here..