

Florida: COVID Case Numbers Skyrocket Due to Bad Data, Fraudulent Reporting, and No Definition of What a Case Is

written by GEG | July 15, 2020

Florida: A local Fox News affiliate investigated the surge in coronavirus cases in the Sunshine State that suddenly spiked from 2,000 to 12,000 new cases per day. FOX found that many labs were reporting 100% COVID positivity rates, which means everyone tested positive. Other labs had impossibly high numbers of people testing positive. Some medical facilities like Orlando Health, which had a 98% positivity rate, had to admit that the real rate was only 9.4% – and even that likely was overstated. The Florida Department of Health says that some private labs were not reporting negative test result data to the state. While Florida has broken national records for jumps in cases due to fake reporting, the state's Coronavirus fatality rate shows no meaningful increase. -GEG After FOX 35 News noticed errors in the state's report on positivity rates, the Florida Department of Health said that some laboratories have not been reporting negative test result data to the state.

Countless labs have reported a 100 percent positivity rate, which means every single person tested was positive. Other labs had very high positivity rates. FOX 35 News found that testing sites like one local Centra Care reported that 83 people were tested and all tested positive. Then, NCF Diagnostics in Alachua reported 88 percent of tests were positive.

How could that be? FOX 35 News investigated these astronomical numbers, contacting every local location mentioned in the report.

The report showed that Orlando Health had a 98 percent positivity rate. However, when FOX 35 News contacted the hospital, they confirmed errors in the report. Orlando Health's positivity rate is only 9.4 percent, not 98 percent as in the report.
