

California's Public Health Director Quits After Test Reporting Glitch

written by GEG | August 13, 2020

California's public health director, Dr. Sonia Angell, quit after a technical 'glitch' caused up to 300,000 records to be backlogged – although not all are coronavirus test results and some may be duplicates. At least 49 state and local public health leaders have resigned, retired or been fired.