Lancaster, Pennsylvania: Ricardo Munoz, a non-white man who charged at a lone police officer with a knife, fell, and was then shot to death by the policeman on Sunday, September 13. Riots broke out after false rumors spread that an “unarmed,” “autistic,” “black” man or an “autistic 14-year-old child” was shot and killed by police. Police say that Munoz’ sister called them when her brother was reportedly becoming aggressive with his mother and was attempting to break into her house. Munoz’ sister said that he was bipolar, schizophrenic and off his medications, and that she was just trying to get mental-health aid when she called authorities.

Last year, Munoz was allegedly beaten after his video game console was stolen and he is accused of entering a home and stabbing four people in retaliation, including a 16-year old boy whose face was slashed. He was charged with four counts of felony assault and was initially held on $1 million bail. He was reportedly released without paying any bail, and was placed on electronic monitoring. His trial date was originally set for March, but was delayed due to COVID-19 restrictions.
