

The Thick Red Line Aims to Unite Police with the People by Refusing to Enforce Victimless Crimes

written by GEG | November 20, 2020

Howard Lichtman of ThickRedLine.org advocates for police refusing to enforce victimless crimes, such as refusing to enforce Covid-19 lockdown orders. One of their the mottoes is 'no victim, no crime'. Lichtman says that rejecting enforcement of victimless crimes unites the police with the people against the politicians. Lichtman says police can regain respect by focusing on the five main transgressions that create victims: murder, rape, assault, theft and trespass, instead of fighting victimless crimes and raising revenue through citations. -GEG

Additional source:

<https://thickredline.org/>