

Biden's New Executive Actions Include Mask Mandate, Racial Equity & Rejoining Paris Accord

On his first day in office, President Joe Biden signed more than a dozen Executive Orders including orders for the US to rejoin the World Health Organization, rejoin the Paris Accord, and a commitment to racial equity training in critical race theory, and a federal mask mandate. He signed an order overturning Trump's travel ban order. Non-citizens will be counted in the US Census, affecting the allocation of money and federal representation. He ordered an end to construction of the border wall. He extended eviction and foreclosure moratoriums and 'paused' student loan payments until September 30. He ended the Keystone XL pipeline and revoked oil and gas development at national wildlife monuments. And much, much more. A complete list is included in this article. -GEG

From Zerohedge:

Biden officially kicked off his one-day blitz of executive orders and executive actions, as expected, by signing them in front of an eager crowd of media, which has been following him around all day on his first day in office.

Biden kicked off the flurry of what are expected to be 17 or more individual executive action items by requiring masks on all federal grounds, while asking agencies to extend moratoriums on evictions and on federal student loan payments. He also signed an order overturning Trump's travel ban order.

Another order asks Americans to don face coverings for 100 days while reviving a global health unit in the National Security Council that was allowed to go dormant during the Trump administration to oversee America's pandemic preparedness and response. Biden will also begin to reverse steps taken by former President Trump to withdraw from the WHO by sending Dr. Fauci to speak at the international group's executive board meeting on Thursday.

"As you've heard [Biden] say, the pandemic will continue to get worse before it gets better," Jeff Zients, the incoming White House coronavirus czar, told reporters on a call previewing the administration's actions. "This is clearly a national emergency and we will treat it as such."

Biden also signed an EO to stop construction of border wall-work ordered under President Trump, even as Fox News reported that the contract with the construction company was already paid out.
