An unidentified man in Northern California died hours after receiving the Covid-19 vaccine. According to officials, he had tested positive for COVID-19 in late December and received the vaccine Thursday. The sheriff's office says the man was not administered his vaccine by Placer County Public Health and it is unknown where he got his vaccine or which vaccine he received. Officials are concerned that people will blame the death on the vaccine. -GEG

DAVIS, Calif. (KTXL) — The Placer County Sheriff's Office and Public Health reported Saturday that they are investigating the death of a man who received a COVID-19 vaccine.

According to officials, the person had tested positive for COVID-19 in late December and received the vaccine Thursday. The sheriff's office says the man was not administered his vaccine by Placer County Public Health.

It's unknown where he got his vaccine or which vaccine he received, as officials have yet to say.

A cause of death has not been reported yet and agencies are still investigating, but they reported he died hours later after receiving the vaccine.
