

23 Americans Tested Positive for Flu Last Week Compared to 14,657 Reported Last Year at Same Time

written by GEG | February 1, 2021

During the second week of January, only 23 people tested positive for the flu in the US compared with 14,657 people who tested positive during the same time last year. The total number of general deaths did not change significantly, which is evidence that flu cases are under reported and Covid cases are over reported.