

“Never-Before-Seen COVID Symptoms” Caused by Other Diseases Mislabeled as COVID

Investigative journalist Jon Rappoport revealed that, while authorities cannot prove that a novel, never-seen-before Covid-19 virus even exists because it has never been isolated, the deaths attributed to Covid-19 have a far more simple explanation: Other illnesses are being designated as Covid-19. For example, doctors in New York were mystified by symptoms such as shortness of breath attributed to Covid but, according to WebMD, this symptom is commonly caused by asthma, COPD, emphysema, bronchitis, heart disorders, and anemia. Opioid medicines can slow breathing to nearly a non-existent and lethal level!

Another allegedly ‘unusual’ phenomena is a ‘ground-glass’ hazy, white-flecked pattern seen on lung CT scans, but this is commonly known as a symptom of other viral infections, chronic lung disease, fibrosis, other inflammatory conditions, and cancer. - GEG
