

UK Hiring COVID Marshals to Patrol Streets Until 2023 Despite Lockdown Restrictions Supposedly Ending in June

Government councils in the UK are hiring COVID Marshals to patrol streets from July until the end of 2023, despite the fact that all lockdown restrictions are supposed to end in June. In all likelihood, fear-mongering over a “third wave” of the virus will be used to reintroduce lockdown at the beginning of Autumn. Just like the UK government promised for months that it wouldn’t introduce vaccine passports while secretly funding their creation, the state has been caught lying yet again. In mid-April, a survey showed that 56% of those polled said that it would be acceptable to have to prove vaccination or negative COVID status in order to enter a shop, while 32% said that it would be unacceptable. A whopping 65% indicated they would be willing to show a vaccine passport in order to be allowed to go to work, showing they are ready to accept the system.

Meanwhile, as many as 10,000 people marched on London last weekend in the ‘Unite for Freedom’ protest against vaccine passports and lockdowns.

“A new army of Covid Marshals is being recruited for roles that could last until 2023 despite Government plans to lift all remaining restrictions on June 21,” reports the Telegraph.

“Councils around the country are advertising jobs that do not begin until July – several days after the supposed freedom day.”

One example is Hertfordshire County Council, which is “offering a contract of up to £3 million to firms that can supply 60 marshals from July 1 until January 31 next year.”

“The contract comes with a possible one-year extension, meaning marshals would still be patrolling until 2023,” states the report.

The Marshals will be tasked with ensuring “compliance” and helping the public understand “regulations and guidance,” despite the fact that all regulations are supposed to be terminated in 8 weeks time.

According the video below, Street Ranges are similar to COVID Marshals as they cannot enforce rules, only the police can enforce laws.
