

British Airways Confirms 4 Vaccinated Pilots Have Recently Died, Claims No Link to Vaccines

British Airways confirmed that four of their pilots recently died. Many people on the internet speculated that the pilots died after receiving COVID vaccines, but the airline claims, without any proof or additional information, that the deaths were not caused by or related to the shots. British Airways, like nearly all airlines, is aggressively pushing vaccines for both its employees and passengers leading critics to believe that all of the pilots had been vaccinated. Sky News in Australia reported that Spain and Russia have warned people who have been vaccinated may be at higher risk for blood clots on airline flights.

Online rumors have been circulating over the past few days that four British Airways pilots have died, and that British Airways is in “crisis talks” with the British government about these deaths. In attempting to dismiss this rumor, Reuters ran a fact check article that actually confirms the deaths of the four pilots.

Via Reuters:

The spokesperson, however, confirmed the authenticity of the four condolence books, as four company pilots had recently passed away. “Our thoughts are with their family and friends,” they said, adding that none of the deaths was linked to

British Airways, like nearly all airlines, is aggressively pushing vaccines for both its employees (including pilots) and passengers. Earlier this year, for example, British Airways launched its own vaccine passport.

According to Reuters, there is no truth to the claim that British Airways is in “crisis talks” with the British government. However, if such crisis talks were taking place, they would no doubt be classified as a national security issue, so Reuters wouldn’t be told about this anyway. That doesn’t mean they are taking place, but if we’ve learned anything over the last 18 months, it’s that when the controlled corporate media “debunks” things related to covid, that usually means the claims are true.
