

CDC Director Admits she was Wrong When she Said 99% of Covid Deaths are among the Unvaxed

CDC Director Rochelle Walensky admitted during a press briefing last week that her claim that over 99% of Covid patients dying in hospitals were unvaccinated was false. The CDC's data showed the number of Covid patient in-hospital deaths in May were 15% among the vaccinated, not 0.5% as they all claimed – which is 30x higher than they stated. She told a CNN reporter that the 99% number came from data “from analyses in several states from January through June” and did not reflect the latest data. Those who are calling out false statements such as this are being banned by the media. The Federation of State Medical Boards is trying to silence doctors for telling the truth by threatening to pull their medical licenses if they step out of line from the official line. 'GEG

Transcript:

CNN's Kaitlan Collins: Several of you and the President have repeatedly cited figures saying that 99 percent of those who die from COVID-19 are unvaccinated and 95 percent, around that, are hospital- – who are hospitalized are unvaccinated. With the Delta variant, do you still stand by these numbers, and do you have government data to back them up?

CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky: Yes, thank you for that question, Kaitlan.

So those data were data that were from analyses in several states from January through June and didn't reflect the data that we have now from the Delta variant. We are actively working to update those in the context of the Delta variant. I do want to reiterate, though, that based on the data we're seeing – and we don't have fully updated numbers – universally, as we look at our hospitalizations and as we look at our deaths, they are overwhelmingly unvaccinated people.

From Information Liberation:

CDC Director Rochelle Walensky admitted during a press briefing last week that her claim that over 99% of covid patients dying in hospitals were unvaccinated was a load of crap.

The claim, which was also echoed by Anthony Fauci, Surgeon General Vivek Murthy and other top officials, was shown to be a lie by the CDC's own data released by the Washington Post on July 29. The CDC's data showed the number of covid patient in-hospital deaths in May were 15% among the vaccinated, not 0.5% as they all claimed – which is 30x higher than they stated.
