

US: Homeland Security Insider Blows Whistle on Child Sex Trafficking Gangs

written by GEG | August 27, 2021

A whistleblower inside the Department of Homeland Security said that known criminal gang members who are listed on the 'Transnational Organized Crime' watchlist because they caused trouble in other countries are being allowed to cross the border and come into the United States so long as they say their lives would be in danger if they returned to their country of origin. This changes the normal process of immigration, allowing their names to be removed from the watchlist, and they can receive protections similar to asylum seekers. These criminals are even issued work permits. The whistleblower stated that all of these Transnational Criminal Organizations are involved in child sex trafficking. Gang members are sponsoring and taking custody as the guardians of 'unaccompanied children' who cross the border into the US. Children are being enslaved while America is overtaken by criminals. -GEG

BREAKING: DHS Insider Blows Whistle on International Child Sex Trafficking Gangs Exploiting 'Reasonable Fear' Loophole ... 'Every Single One of These Transnational Criminal Organizations Are Involved in Sex Trafficking'

- Department of Homeland Security [DHS] Insider: "Once an [illegal immigrant] informs the U.S. government that they have some type of fear, or that their life is in jeopardy, or they'll be persecuted, or they may be tortured, they are put in what's called the 'reasonable fear [category]'...Once [a migrant gang member] makes the declaration of, 'My life is in danger and I may be harmed if I return home,' they're taken off the [Transnational Organized Crime] watchlist. That makes it a giant loophole."

- DHS Insider: "Some of these [migrant gang members] are encountered by Border Patrol and they're asked right away, 'Do you fear for your life if you are deported?' They'll say no, and then the next day they'll say yes."
- DHS Insider: "It's almost like they [migrant gang members] are coached, 'Hey if you get caught, just go ahead and say this.'"
- DHS Insider: It is not true that migrant gang members are in danger if they were to be returned to their country of origin.
- DHS Insider: "These are the people that are causing danger in those foreign countries. That's why they're on the Transnational Organized Crime [TOC] watchlist. So, they are allowed to stay in the country while they wait for the asylum claims...They will be able to file for what is called the Employment Authorization Card. This essentially is a work permit, and they're allowed to stay legally under the protections of this [permit]."
- DHS Insider: "This to me is a bigger problem than terrorism is right now within the country...Every single one of these Transnational Criminal Organizations are involved in sex trafficking."
- DHS Insider: "Children are the most vulnerable population of any society. So, when you're sending kids to a place with no family [accompanying them] – or when the only family or guardians [they have] are known gang members, they're even more vulnerable."
- DHS Insider: "If I was to go to any other media organization [besides Project Veritas], like The Washington Post or CNN – they're just mouthpieces for the administration...they won't report the information."
