

Harvard Business School Moves Online after Surge in Covid Cases among Vaxxed Students

Harvard Business School announced it has moved all of its first-year MBA students and some of its second-year students to temporary remote learning due to “a steady rise in breakthrough” COVID-19 infections among its student population. People who are vaccinated can still test positive for COVID.