

Two Companies Control 99% of the World's Productive Assets – and Driving the 'Great Reset'

written by GEG | September 6, 2021

This disturbing video reveals that two investment firms, BlackRock and Vanguard, own big pharma, big media, and just about everything else you can think of! They have ownership in 1,600 American firms, and control over $9-trillion in assets. The 1% owns more than the 99%. 82% of all earned money in 2017 went to this 1%, somewhat like a massive company store. Vanguard is the largest shareholder of BlackRock. Vanguard is privately owned, so it is difficult to discern the individual owners, but it is linked to many of the oldest, richest families, including the Rothschilds, the Orsini family, the Bush family, the British Royal family, the DuPont family, the Morgans, Vanderbilts and Rockefellers. -GEG

Story at-a-glance:

- Big Pharma and mainstream media are largely owned by two asset management firms: BlackRock and Vanguard.
- Drug companies are driving COVID-19 responses – all of which, so far, have endangered rather than optimized public health – and mainstream media have been willing accomplices in spreading their propaganda, a false official narrative that leads the public astray and fosters fear based on lies.
- Vanguard and BlackRock are the top two owners of Time Warner, Comcast, Disney and News Corp, four of the six media companies that control more than 90% of the U.S. media landscape.
- BlackRock and Vanguard form a secret monopoly that own just about everything else you can think of too. In all, they have ownership in 1,600 American firms, which in 2015 had combined revenues of $9.1 trillion. When you add in the third-largest global owner, State Street, their combined ownership encompasses nearly 90% of all S&P 500 firms.
- Vanguard is the largest shareholder of BlackRock. Vanguard itself, on the other hand, has a unique structure that makes its ownership more difficult to discern, but many of the oldest, richest families in the world can be linked to Vanguard funds.

What does The New York Times and a majority of other legacy media have in common with Big Pharma? Answer: They're largely owned by BlackRock and the Vanguard Group, the two largest asset management firms in the world. Moreover, it turns out these two companies form a secret monopoly that owns just about everything else you can think of too. As reported in the featured video:

"The stock of the world's largest corporations are owned by the same institutional investors. They all own each other. This means that 'competing' brands, like Coke and Pepsi aren't really competitors, at all, since their stock is owned by exactly the same investment companies, investment funds, insurance companies, banks and in some cases, governments.

"The smaller investors are owned by larger investors. Those are owned by even bigger investors. The visible top of this pyramid shows only two companies whose names we have often seen ...They are Vanguard and BlackRock.

"The power of these two companies is beyond your imagination. Not only do they own a large part of the stocks of nearly all big companies but also the stocks of the investors in those companies. This gives them a complete monopoly.

"A Bloomberg report states that both these companies in the year 2028, together will have investments in the amount of 20 trillion dollars. That means that they will own almost everything.'"
