

Disturbing: Aussie Cops Take Elderly Woman to Jail for Failing to Show Vaccine Papers

written by GEG | January 13, 2022

Footage out of Queensland, Australia, shows Covid patrols are literally rounding people up and taking them to jail for refusing to say whether they're vaccinated or not. In one video going viral on social media this week, Queensland cops are seen attempting to forcibly push an elderly woman who's just exited Hervey Bay Coffee into the back of a paddy wagon. The owner of the cafe said that the police pushed to get her to hand over her phone and when she refused, they said she was under arrest. He stated that there is nothing in the mandate that says a person can be arrested for not showing their status, but says you can be made to leave a venue. Which she did on her own accord, but police said she was obstructing justice.

Footage out of Queensland, Australia, shows Covid patrols are literally rounding people up and taking them to jail for refusing to say whether they're vaccinated or not.

In one video going viral on social media this week, Queensland cops are seen attempting to forcibly push an elderly woman who's just exited Hervey Bay Coffee into the back of a paddy wagon.

One cop explains she's being arrested for refusing to show them her "certificate." Later another officer claims she's being arrested for "obstructing justice."

"I'm happy to show you my information," the woman pleads with the officers, who at this point are refusing to listen to any explanation. "I'm happy to provide my name and address," she begs helplessly.

"Disgusting, I'm embarrassed to be an Australian," the man filming the altercation says.

Explaining the situation on Facebook, the owner of the Cafe, Matt Straight, who also filmed the incident, described "5 disgusting individuals in police uniform" entering his business and interrogating him "as to whether I'm allowing unvaxxed people dine at my establishment and then proceed to check all guests and arrest this lovely lady just because she wouldn't show her medical records to them."
