

Klaus Schwab Discusses Microchipping People's Brains and Reveals His Greatest Influence

written by GEG | September 26, 2022

The World Economic Forum (WEF) would have us believe that they're merely a benign organization that brings together thought leaders from across the globe to discuss solutions to the greatest challenges facing humanity while developing the future leaders who will likely be charged with implementing those solutions. And yet they continue talking about extreme plans for switching humans to an insect diet, implanting microchips in our brains and technological advances that will render many humans extraneous, obsolete and useless. Yuval Noah Harari is a top adviser to Schwab who admitted that COVID was the 'moment' that everything became monitored and when surveillance "started going under the skin" with biological data collection.
(Warning: vulgar language)