

About Us

The primary media outlets in every country currently are dominated by collectivists who believe it is their duty to present the news in such a way that the common man will have a “correct” opinion. Even those of us who are aware of this bias can fall victim to it if we have no access to the raw facts.

In most cases, the truth is available even within mainstream media if one has the time to search for it. Unfortunately, that excludes just about everyone who is preoccupied with earning a living or raising a family. The goal of Need to Know is to provide unfiltered news and commentary as an antidote to Newspeak.

We expand the headlines to include our analysis of the significance of each story, which often is obscured by the details. There are no sports or lifestyles sections and few stories about the weather or crime or natural disasters. Aside from an occasional story about an amazing event or accomplishment, the only information you will find here is that which pertains to freedom, health, and financial security, which is a lot.

In selecting these reports, we pledge to be as objective as possible. Even though we are advocates of individualism, we will not pass along any stories that twist the truth in order to favor our own perspective, for that would make us no better than our collectivist adversaries. If facts are not comfortable, so be it. We will report them anyway and let truth have its voice.
