

Governors of Texas and Mississippi Remove Business Restrictions and End State Mask Mandates

Republican Governor Greg Abbott of Texas issued a new executive order that rescinded most of the previous executive orders regarding Covid-19 policies, and all businesses may reopen to capacity. He also ended the statewide mask mandate.

First Florida, then Texas, and now Mississippi has also removed business restrictions and dropped state mask mandates.

Texas Governor Greg Abbott (R) on Tuesday announced all businesses in the state can reopen 100% and ended the statewide mask mandate.

It's about time.

“So today, I’m issuing a new executive order that rescinds most of the earlier executive orders,” Abbott said. “Effective next Wednesday, all businesses of any type are allowed to open 100%...also, I am ending the statewide mask mandate,” Abbott said from Lubbock.

“Under no circumstance can someone be punished for not wearing a mask,” he said.

Mexico Bans Genetically Modified (GM) Corn and Glyphosate Pesticide Despite Intense Pressure

Mexican president Andrés Manuel López Obrador has pledged to phase out use of the herbicide glyphosate and the cultivation of genetically modified corn and, eventually, GM corn imports. Under NAFTA, the United States has seen a 400% increase in corn exports to Mexico. Obrador's policies have begun to favor Mexican producers, particularly small-scale farmers, and to protect consumers alarmed by the rise of chronic diseases associated with high-fat, high-sugar processed foods. GM corn producers and exporters in the US are considering lawsuits against Mexico over the bans. Mexico is only banning GM corn, however, natural corn crops will be allowed to be imported into Mexico. -GEG

Mexican president Andrés Manuel López Obrador quietly rocked the agribusiness world with his New Year's Eve decree to phase out use of the herbicide glyphosate and the cultivation of genetically modified corn. His administration sent an even stronger aftershock two weeks later, clarifying that the government would also phase out GM corn imports in three years and the ban would include not just corn for human consumption but yellow corn destined primarily for livestock. Under NAFTA, the United States has seen a 400% increase in corn exports to Mexico, the vast majority genetically modified yellow dent corn.

The bold policy moves fulfill a campaign promise by Mexico's populist president, whose agricultural policies have begun to favor Mexican producers, particularly small-scale farmers, and protect consumers alarmed by the rise of obesity and chronic diseases associated with high-fat, high-sugar processed foods.

In banning glyphosate, the decree cites the precautionary principle and the growing body of scientific research showing the dangers of the chemical, the active ingredient in Bayer/Monsanto's Roundup herbicide. The government had stopped imports of glyphosate since late 2019, citing the World Health Organization's warning that the chemical is a "probable carcinogen."

The prohibitions on genetically modified corn, which appear toward the end of the decree, have more profound implications. The immediate ban on permits for cultivation of GM corn formalizes current restrictions, ordered by Mexican courts in 2013 when a citizen lawsuit challenged government permitting of experimental GM corn planting by Monsanto and other multinational seed companies on the grounds of the contamination threat they posed to Mexico's rich store of native corn varieties. The import ban cites the same environmental threats but goes further, advancing the López Obrador administration's goals of promoting greater food self-sufficiency in key crops. As the decree states:

"[W]ith the objective of achieving self-sufficiency and food sovereignty, our country must be oriented towards establishing sustainable and culturally adequate agricultural production, through the use of agroecological practices and inputs that are safe for human health, the country's biocultural diversity and the environment, as well as congruent with the agricultural traditions of Mexico."

North Dakota Introduces Bill to Terminate Mask Mandate. Tennessee Seeks to Prevent Mask and Vaccine Requirements in Business

The House of Representatives in North Dakota voted 50-44 to make mandates on wearing face masks illegal after Governor Doug Burgum imposed a mask mandate three months ago. The bill's sponsor, state Representative Jeff Hoverson, called mask mandates "diabolical silliness," characterizing them as a conspiracy run by "unelected, wealthy bureaucrats who are robbing our freedoms and perpetuating lies." The bill also "prohibits making use of a face mask, shield, or covering a condition for entry, education, employment, or services."

Tennessee lawmakers have proposed legislation that would prevent the private sector from discriminating against those who do not wear COVID masks in public places. The legislation would keep stores, restaurants, movie theaters, gyms, and any other form of business from requiring the wearing of masks or requiring proof of vaccination in order to obtain services.

In a recent interview, Dr. Anthony Fauci said that he sees it as entirely possible that everyone will have to keep wearing face coverings throughout the entirety of 2021 and into 2022.

As the Biden Administration and the CDC continue to flip-flop and move the goal posts regarding the use of COVID masks, first claiming they only needed to be worn for the first 100 days of the Biden presidency, and now claiming they need to be worn for the next year, Tennessee legislators are advancing a bill that would criminalize discrimination against non-mask wearers.

Tennessee lawmakers have crafted and introduced the Medical Non-Discrimination Business and Consumer Act. This bill is designed to prevent the private sector from discriminating against those who do not wear COVID masks in public places.

The legislation is crafted to include non-mask wearing into anti-discrimination and disability laws, bringing mask-wearing in line with laws preventing private businesses from general discrimination, the illegal invasion of medical privacy, and the violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

As written, the bill would prohibit any person and/or business owner from denying an individual the “full and equal enjoyment of goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, and accommodations of a place of public accommodation, resort, or amusement on the grounds of the wearing or use of a medical device, or whether the individual has received medical treatment, such as a vaccine.”

One Third of US Troops Are Rejecting Covid RNA Vaccine

Reports of Covid-19 are decreasing. Despite an outbreak of illness said to be Covid-19 aboard a Navy ship, a top US military official said Wednesday that more than one-third of service members are declining to take the vaccine. During a House hearing on the Armed Forces' response to Covid-19, Representative Mike Rogers asked Major General Jeff Taliaferro, Vice Director for Operations, what percentage of service members have declined to receive the vaccine. Taliaferro replied that the number was somewhere around two-thirds acceptance. -GEG

Across the US, Europe and most of the world, new COVID cases and deaths continue to decline as New York State announces more summertime reopening plans for summer camps, indoor family-entertainment centers and amusement parks and the EU strikes a major deal for more COVID jobs.

Worldwide, total case numbers are nearing 110MM, as total deaths are on the verge of breaking above 2.25MM as of Wednesday. In the US, new daily cases and deaths have plunged to their lowest levels since the fall, as projections show numbers falling even more quickly than academic projections used by the CDC had anticipated.

Globally, new case numbers and deaths are also at their lowest levels in months.

The first two FEMA mass vaccination centers eopen in California, Joe Biden is promising all Americans who want the shot will be able to get one by July. But even after the latest outbreak aboard a Navy ship, a top US military said Wednesday that more than 1/3rd of servicemembers are declining to get the vaccine.

During a House hearing on the Armed Forces' response to COVID-19, Ranking Member of the Armed Services Committee Rep. Mike Rogers asked Maj. Gen Jeff Taliaferro, Vice Director for Operations, what percentage of service members have declined to receive the vaccine. Tallaferro replied that the number was somewhere around 2/3rds acceptance.

Biden Signs Executive Order

for Federal Control over 30% of America's Land and 30% of US Oceans

The Biden administration announced that it would extend the national foreclosure moratorium and mortgage forbearance through June, preventing home foreclosures and allowing for delayed mortgage payments. Census Bureau data indicated in December that 20% of renters across the country are now unable to pay their rent, and 14-million were behind on rent. 40-million people were at risk for eviction, and total unpaid rent was estimated at $70-billion. Landlords will not be able to recover the lost revenue, and the situation continues to worsen.

Farmlands and private property are targeted as the US has committed to tripling its so-called protected lands. President Biden signed an executive order to "protect" 30% of US land and 30% of US oceans by 2030 in the name of environmentalism and biodiversity. Much of the land now is privately owned, so the plan is to put an end to private property by any means necessary, including confiscatory taxation and regulation. - GEG

Journalist Andy Ngo Says Antifa Brainwashes Members to Kill and Become Martyrs

Andy Ngo, an investigative journalist, has a new book, Unmasked: Inside Antifa's Radical Plan to Destroy Democracy. It's about Antifa, which he says is a domestic terrorist organization. He moved to London from his hometown in Portland, Oregon, fearing for his life. He was beaten on video by Antifa in 2019 and suffered a brain injury, yet no one was arrested even though everything was recorded on video. His book provides many details about Antifa, including information about funding from crowd sourcing, the goal to destroy America no matter what party is in power, the networks that include academics and professional people, the Democrats who turn a blind eye to violence, the fusion with Black Lives Matter, membership that demands radicalization and a commitment to crime and even murder, and the failure of law enforcement to arrest and prosecute them in Democrat cities. -GEG

Unmasked: Inside Antifa's radical plan to destroy democracy

U.S. President Joe Biden dismisses Antifa as just "an idea." Independent journalist Andy Ngo proves him wrong. The intrepid investigator infiltrates the black box agitators for his new book, "Unmasked," and exposes the terrorist anarchy fueling their destruction. Ultimately, the tables turn, Ngo becomes the hunted and has to flee the country to save his life.

Whoever hears “fascism” thinks of the darkest chapters in world history, of Mussolini, Hitler, racism and mass killings. Consequently, if you claim to fight fascism you are sure to win the sympathy of the masses. All the more so if you carry the battle cry in your name, like “Antifa.”

For years, the media and left-wing politicians have romanticized Antifa’s black clad thugs as urban revolutionaries in the spirit of Robin Hood. During the first presidential debate Joe Biden waved off Antifa as merely “an idea, not an organization.”

In reality, the name “Antifaschistische Aktion” is a cynical marketing scam to obscure the ultimate and active goal of destroying America and democracy, itself. Investigative reporter Andy Ngo follows Antifa’s trail of destruction back to their headquarters in his new, eye opening expose, “Unmasked.”

With meticulous, on-the-ground, first hand reporting, he exposes Antifa’s fighting tactics, indoctrination techniques, and terrorist plots. Ngo names names. As he explains, “Antifa are no longer a fringe group of radicals wreaking havoc in a handful of cities in America.” The violent extremists have become distressingly mainstream. Deploying left-wing, populist slogans, the anarchists have achieved “tremendous success through finding fellow travelers in education, journalism, the legal profession, and politics.”

Ngo was brutally beaten during a 2019 Antifa protest in his hometown of Portland, Oregon, suffering a traumatic brain injury. He turns to the Portland police for justice. They soon prove impotent at best, cowardly and complicit at worst. In a grotesque twist, the son of Vietnamese refugees who fled to the freedom and safety of the United States is forced to flee his permissive adopted home. From a safe perch in London (for the moment), he tells Die Weltwoche “There’s an escalating threat of violence against me.”

Time Magazine Reveals Astounding Inner Workings by Leftist Activists, Rioters, Big Biz, Big Tech and the Media to Oust Trump

Time Magazine published a detailed description of how the left organized the ouster of President Donald Trump in the 2020 election. It is a window into the structure of the groups that colluded to put Joe Biden into office. Some of the main players include Big Tech and the media outlets that control the flow of information. The AFL-CIO that supposedly represents workers, and the US Chamber of commerce that supposedly represents entrepreneurs, joined forces to pressure Trump and Republican politicians to accept defeat. The riots of Antifa and Black Lives Matter were weaponized as a looming threat against anyone who opposed or had the power to stop the certification of the 2020 election. -GEG

Summary by JW Williams

Time Magazine published a 6,500 word article by Molly Ball about how the outcome of the 2020 election was orchestrated to oust President Trump by left wing activists, unions, corporations, the Chamber of Commerce, tech monopolies, mainstream media, Democrat and Republican politicians, Antifa, and Black Lives Matter. Ball wrote that these actors “were not rigging the election; they were fortifying it.”

Other collaborators included the institutional left, like Planned Parenthood and Greenpeace, resistance groups like Indivisible and MoveOn, progressive data geeks and strategists, representatives of donors and foundations, state-level grassroots organizers, and Christian groups such as the National Association of Evangelicals and the National African American Clergy Network.

Mike Podhorzer, the political director of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO), was identified as the architect of the scheme, and he made a pact with the US Chamber of Commerce. Then corporate America turned on Trump and hundreds of major business leaders, many of whom had backed Trump’s candidacy and supported his policies, called on him to concede. Fox News host Laura Ingraham has suggested that the purpose of the right/ left alliance of the Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO was to get rid of Trump and sweep pro-immigration Joe Biden into office in order to open the border to migrants for cheap labor, a benefit for large corporations, while the AFL-CIO would benefit from migrants becoming new members.

Here are some key quotes from Ball:

“There was a conspiracy unfolding behind the scenes, one that both curtailed the protests and coordinated the resistance from CEOs. Both surprises were the result of an informal alliance between left-wing activists and business titans.” And, she later hinted that businesses were tacitly threatened by damage and violence from riots when she wrote, “The summer's racial-justice protests had sent a signal to business owners too: the potential for economy-disrupting civil disorder."

he revealed the goals that were achieved by the left: "Their work touched every aspect of the election. They got states to change voting systems and laws and helped secure hundreds of millions in public and private funding. They fended off voter-suppression lawsuits, recruited armies of poll workers and got millions of people to vote by mail for the first time. They successfully pressured social media companies to take a harder line against disinformation and used data-driven strategies to fight viral smears. They executed national public-awareness campaigns that helped Americans understand how the vote count would unfold over days or weeks, preventing Trump's conspiracy theories and false claims of victory from getting more traction. After Election Day, they monitored every pressure point to ensure that Trump could not overturn the result."

Ball claimed that Fox News surprised everyone by calling Arizona for Biden on Election Day. On November 7, 2020, the election was called, not by states with certified ballot counts, but by the media, giving the perception that Biden had won the election. Anti-Trump leftist crowds were told to "stand down" instead of causing conflict. The stand-down order shows that leftist rioters and vandals can be turned 'on' and 'off' and are highly organized.

Ball stated that the racial-justice uprising sparked by George Floyd's killing in May was not primarily a political move, although it was harnessed to influence the election through the threat of violent protests and that leftist activists began preparing mass protests if Trump tried to "steal" the election. More than 150 liberal groups joined the "Protect the Results" coalition that had a map listing 400 planned post-election demonstrations, to be activated via text message as soon as November 4. In a poll before Election Day, 75% of Americans voiced concern about violence.

The left used other intimidation tactics against GOP legislators from the swing state of Michigan, House Speaker Lee Chatfield and Senate majority leader Mike Shirkey, whom Trump invited to Washington on November 20th, to persuade them to declare the election void and appoint their own electors. The plan failed after leftists swarmed Chatfield and Shirkey at the airport as they arrived and departed. Before the Michigan lawmakers left DC, they met for a drink at the Trump hotel and a street artist projected their images onto the outside of the building along with the words THE WORLD IS WATCHING. Three former governors of Michigan and influential donors also pressured the lawmakers. A law professor at the University of Michigan wrote an article claiming that the meeting with the Republican lawmakers was inappropriate and should be investigated, a veiled threat that caused the Michigan leaders to bring attorneys with them to the meeting with the President.

The Michigan state canvassing board, before certifying the votes, had their livestream flooded with leftist activists who testified for hours with the message of respecting voters' wishes and counting all votes, and the liberal activists also filled Twitter with their hashtag, #alleyesonmi. After that, the dominoes fell. Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and the rest of the states certified their electors.

On January 6, 2021, hundreds of thousands of Trump supporters rallied in DC and were surprised when they were virtually no counter-protesters. The activist left was "strenuously discouraging counter activity," to avoid blame for any mayhem. Following the breach at the Capitol, Trump supporters have now been vilified as insurrectionists and terrorists.

President Trump's remarks on Election Night:

North Dakota Legislators Plan to Nullify Biden's Executive Orders at the State Level

A new bill introduced in the North Dakota State Legislature, would instruct the state's Attorney General to review the constitutionality of each of the executive orders issued by Joe Biden. If it is determined that any executive order is unconstitutional, it would be "nullified" and state, county, or local agencies would be prohibited from enforcing it. The immediate issues targeted for nullification include pandemics and health emergencies, regulation of coal and oil, regulation of agriculture and land use, regulation of the financial sector, and the right to bear arms. South Dakota has almost identical legislation pending. -GEG [This is one of the reasons the next Red Pill Expo will be held in Rapid City, South Dakota on June 4-6. Learn more here.]

Republican legislators in North Dakota are taking a pro-active – and constitutional – step to push back against unconstitutional executive orders coming out of the Biden administration, and they are doing so with the power of the US Constitution in their corner.

A new bill introduced in the North Dakota State Legislature (HB1164), would instruct the state's Attorney General to review the constitutionality of each of the executive orders issued by Joe Biden.

Under the proposed law, should the North Dakota Attorney General find that any executive orders are unlawful – or unconstitutional, the executive order would be “nullified,” it would prohibit any state, county, or local agency – or publicly funded organization – from enforcing the order(s).

The proposed legislation was introduced by State Rep. Tom Kading (R), and eight other Republicans in the North Dakota House.

Specifically, the proposed HB1164, enumerates the following issues for nullification:

- Pandemics or other health emergencies
- The regulation of natural resources, including coal and oil
- The regulation of the agriculture industry
- The use of land
- The regulation of the financial sector as it relates to environmental, social, or governance standards
- The regulation of the constitutional right to keep and bear arms

State Lawmakers Across America Push to Curb Governors' Virus Emergency Powers

State lawmakers around the US are moving to curb the authority of governors and top health officials to impose emergency restrictions such as mask rules and business shutdowns. Legislators in Arizona, Michigan, Ohio, Maryland, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania are seeking a constitutional amendment to strip their governors of many emergency powers. Lawmakers in more than half the states have filed bills this year to limit gubernatorial powers during the pandemic and other emergencies.

On February 4, Wisconsin's Republican-led Assembly voted to repeal Democratic Governor Tony Evers' emergency health order mandating masks in public places. One hour later, the governor responded by issuing a new mask mandate. He said that repealing his first mandate put at risk about $50-million a month in federal funds. A Republican challenge to the mandate is being heard in the state Supreme Court. [Here was just a small peek at what really is driving so many governors to issue mask mandates. It's money from Washington and lots of it.] -GEG

Irritated by the sweeping use of executive orders during the COVID-19 crisis, state lawmakers around the U.S. are moving to curb the authority of governors and top health officials to impose emergency restrictions such as mask rules and business shutdowns.

The push is underway in such states as Arizona, Michigan, Ohio, Maryland, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania, where legislators are seeking a constitutional amendment to strip the governor of many of his emergency powers.

Pennsylvania Republican Sen. Wayne Langerholc said the amendment would “make it unequivocally clear that our General Assembly is a co-equal branch ... that we are not a monarchy and that our voices matter.”

Democratic Gov. Tom Wolf and some of his counterparts around the country have argued that they need authority to act quickly and decisively against the fast-changing threat.

Florida Governor Ron DeSantis Proposes Big Fines for Tech Companies that Ban Lawmakers

The new regulations of a proposed law in Florida include a user opt out of algorithms that suppress or influence the content users see, users must be given a 30-day notice when their account has been blocked or suspended, and tech companies may be sued by individuals for violating the law's tenets. Penalties related to interference in elections include a $100,000 daily fine levied against any company that deplatforms political candidates. -GEG

Fox News host Tucker Carlson said on Tuesday night that Florida Governor Ron DeSantis's Big Tech crackdown will likely set the standard for the rest of the country.

Governor DeSantis announced on Tuesday sweeping action against Big Tech companies, designed to tackle rampant censorship from them, which has mostly been targeted against conservatives and supporters of President Trump. As National File reported:

Some of the new regulations include a mandatory opt-out from content filters created by Big Tech companies, which can leave users "shadowbanned" without the need for full platform removal, a right of action for all Floridians against Big Tech companies who violated this, and a number of daily fines related to interference in elections, including a $100,000 daily fine levied for any company that suspends political candidates.

DeSantis claimed that the Big Tech companies were the number one threat to democracy and freedom of expression in America.

Speaking to Tucker Carlson on Fox News on Tuesday evening, DeSantis said that Floridians wanted protection against being censored by Big Tech, and said his action would end up “being a really good first step” in tackling the dominance and control of Big Tech companies over the lives of ordinary Americans.

“There’s always been the question, what do you do about this?” DeSantis asked. A lot of us have thought that there’s been something wrong for a long time, but to just sit back and hope it gets better, that clearly wasn’t going to work, so we’re leading, and I think it’ll be good.”

DeSantis added that there would likely be a big fight in the legislature against his plans, but that hopefully his administration would garner “a lot of support” for what they’re doing:

“I think most folks do want protections for their privacy and their data, I think most folks want protections from being deplatformed,” said DeSantis. “And it’s just not being banned from Twitter or something, as we’ve seen, these companies... can collude, they can deny you, if you’re a small business, of payment processing, of the ability to use email and text.”

UK: Isle of Man Scraps Lockdown, Masks and Social Distancing

Life on the self-governing island that has a population 85,000 people has returned to 'near normal' by fully reopening businesses, restaurants and pubs, reopening schools, scrapping the mask requirement and ending social distancing. The tiny island exited a 25-day 'circuit break' lockdown after no COVID cases were detected since a small outbreak in early January. Tourists are currently not allowed to enter the Isle of Man, and strict screening and quarantine protocols remain in place for approved visitors.

Residents of the Isle of Man are returning to 'near normal' conditions after the government scrapped mask and social distancing rules and ended a brief lockdown.

The self-governing island, part of the British Isles, exited a 25-day 'circuit break' lockdown after no 'unexplained' COVID cases were detected since a small outbreak in early January.

On Monday, roughly 85,000 residents resumed their customary lifestyles, with some exceptions pertaining to strict border controls and international travel rules.
