

Parents Sue New York City Health Department Over Forced Vaccinations

Brooklyn: Several parents from the Ultra Orthodox Jewish community in Williamsburg who refuse to vaccinate filed a lawsuit against the New York Health Department for issuing a health emergency that ordered people to vaccinate or face a fine. The lawsuit argues that the NY Health Department failed to issue a quarantine before trying to force vaccines on people. The health department has not disclosed the number of people who contracted measles post-vaccination. One doctor cited in the lawsuit argues the current Brooklyn measles cases are not “a clear and present danger to the public health” sufficient to require a mandatory vaccine order. Critics have concerns that the MMR vaccine could arguably be more dangerous than the actual measles infection.

Parents in Brooklyn are teaming up to sue the New York City Health Department after it issued an emergency mandate earlier this month ordering people to vaccinate, or face a stiff fine.

In a lawsuit filed with the Kings County Supreme Court Monday, five groups of parents from the Williamsburg community who refuse to be vaccinated argue they've suffered "irreparable harm" from the city's emergency order, which has caused them to be "ostracized by neighbors" and be "treated like pariahs."

The lawsuit takes the city's medical tyranny head-on, arguing the health department did not follow its own health code, which prescribes they issue public quarantine and isolation orders, and attempted to unjustifiably impose forced vaccinations on the population.

"More than six months after the first cases of measles reported in Williamsburg, and despite the Commissioner of Health's failure to quarantine those infected at any time during this period, the respondents now seek to bully unvaccinated people, and particularly children, and to grandstand against religious exemptions," the plaintiffs write.

Moreover, the lawsuit highlights the health department has not disclosed the number of patients who contracted measles post-vaccination, and cites scientific evidence showing "people who are not vaccinated with measles pose no threat to people who are vaccinated."

One doctor cited in the lawsuit argues the current Brooklyn measles cases are not “a clear and present danger to the public health” sufficient to require a mandatory vaccine order, while others express concerns the MMR vaccine could arguably be more dangerous than the actual measles infection.

The suit stems from an April 9 public health emergency declared by New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, which ordered residents of Williamsburg to undergo mandatory vaccinations or pay a $1,000 fine.

Taxes in the US Must Be

Doubled to Pay for 'Medicare for All,' aka the Single-Payer Program, Promoted by the Left

Presidential candidates on the left are campaigning for 'Medicare for all,' which is single-payer government subsidized healthcare, that has a price tag of $32.6 trillion over 10 years. Seth Denson, a healthcare expert, says that the US takes in $3.6 trillion in taxes per year and would need to double taxes in order to pay for Bernie Sanders' single-payer healthcare. State-funded healthcare would eliminate insurance and about three million jobs in the insurance industry and related businesses. Polls show that 71% of Americans favor the single-payer modal when they are told that it guarantees insurance for all, but support drops to only 37% when people are told that the single-payer model will increase taxes.

Scientists Put Human Gene

into Monkeys to Make Them Smarter and More Human-Like

Chinese scientists have used gene editing to make the brains of monkeys more human-like by editing the human version of a gene known as 'MCPH1' into the macaques. The gene made the monkeys' brain develop along a more human-like timeline. The gene-hacked monkeys showed better reaction times and improved short-term memories. Few scientists have examined or criticized the danger of creating transgenic creatures, making it likely to recur.

Making monkeys more smart and human-like, scientists have used gene-editing to insert human brain gene in a monkey.

For the first time, a team of Chinese scientists made use of gene-editing techniques to make monkey brains more human-like. By the end, the monkeys, rhesus macaques, got smarter and had superior memories as compared to the unaltered monkeys.

NY Mayor Declares Health Emergency over Measles. Vaccine Now Mandatory or $1000 Fine

New York Mayor Bill DeBlasio declared a public health emergency to address the measles “crisis” in Brooklyn’s Williamsburg community, an ultra-Orthodox Jewish neighborhood. The declaration requires all unvaccinated people, including children over 6 months old, who may have been exposed to the virus to get the triple mumps, measles and rubella MMR vaccine, or face a fine of $1000. The New York City Health Department has also issued an order to yeshivas to prohibit unvaccinated students from attending classes or face a fine or even closure of the school.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio has ordered residents of a Brooklyn neighborhood to undergo mandatory vaccinations or pay a fine.

Declaring a public health emergency Tuesday, the mayor insisted the order was necessary to address the measles “crisis” in Brooklyn’s Williamsburg community, a neighborhood of more than 250 ultra-Orthodox Jewish residents.

“The declaration requires all unvaccinated people who may have been exposed to the virus to get the vaccine, including children over 6 months old,” reports the Associated Press.

The order affects people residing, going to school or working within four ZIP codes: 11205, 11206, 11221 and 11237.

De Blasio said anyone in these areas must receive the measles vaccine or get fined up to $1,000.

“We have a very dangerous situation on our hands,” de Blasio stated. “We cannot allow this dangerous disease to make a comeback here in New York City. We have to stop it now.”

Jury Returns an $80 Million Blowout Verdict Against Roundup Glyphosate Weed Killer, Owned by Bayer AG

Bayer AG bought Monsanto and the company has lost a second trial over claims that its Roundup weed killer causes cancer. Bayer has been ordered by a San Francisco jury to pay compensatory damages of $5.3 million and punitive damages of $75 million to Edwin Hardeman, 70, who was diagnosed with cancer after spraying the herbicide on his property for 26 years. The verdict follows a similar decision last August in which a former school groundskeeper was awarded $289 million after claiming that Roundup gave him non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. Bayer, is facing more than 9000 similar lawsuits across the US.

Bayer AG has lost a second trial over claims that its Roundup weed killer causes cancer – and has been ordered by a San Francisco jury to pay compensatory damages of $5.3 million and punitive damages of $75 million to a 70-year-old California man, Edwin Hardeman, who was diagnosed with cancer after spraying the herbicide on his property for decades.

The plaintiff's attorneys said he developed non-Hodgkin's lymphoma after 26 years of regularly using Roundup to tackle weeds and poison oak, according to the Wall Street Journal. The active ingredient in Roundup and Ranger Pro is glyphosate, a herbicide.

Wednesday's verdict follows a similar decision last August in which a former school groundskeeper was awarded \$289 million after claiming that Roundup gave him non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

German Bayer AG acquired the Roundup brand of glyphosate weed killers in its $66 billion purchase of Monsanto in June of last year.

Responding to the verdict, Bayer said in a statement "We are disappointed with the jury's decision, but this verdict does not change the weight of over four decades of extensive science and the conclusions of regulators worldwide that support the safety of our glyphosate-based herbicides and that they are not carcinogenic."

"You can't keep trying case after case after case and keep losing and say, 'We're not going to settle,'" said Thomas G. Rohback, a trial lawyer at Axinn in New York quoted by Bloomberg, who adds that if Bayer continues to lose at trial, it "has to put the possibility of a settlement of these cases into the mix."

Wednesday's case is considered a "bellwether" trial for hundreds of other plaintiffs in the US with similar claims, which means the verdict could affect future litigation and other cancer patients and families. Monsanto, now owned by the German pharmaceutical company Bayer, is facing more than 9,000 similar lawsuits across the US.

Seattle Is Dying: A Documentary About the Causes and Solutions for Homelessness

su_note note_color="#efe1a7" text_color="#000000" radius="5"]KOMO News made this documentary that explores Seattle's leftist policies, disguised as compassion, that encourage homelessness and drug addiction. In the last five years, a culture shift began with legislature decriminalizing felonies and dumping convicts onto the streets. Police have been blocked from enforcing the law and when they make arrests, the judicial system releases the criminals within days. Shoplifting is rarely prosecuted and crime has exploded, the city is overrun with rats, garbage, human feces and needles. Seattle spends over a billion dollars a year on homelessness programs, but the real problem is not lack of housing, but drug addiction. Seattle lacks the political will to overcome the problem. Rhode Island is creating a model for success in ending homelessness and drug addiction through enforcing the law and an innovative drug intervention program. [/su_note]

California: Parents Demand Removal of Cell Tower at Elementary School After 4th Child Is Diagnosed with Cancer

San Joaquin County, California: Parents are demanding a cell tower at their children's elementary school of 400 students in be removed after four students and three teachers were reportedly diagnosed with cancer. Eric Windheim, an electromagnetic radiation specialist, says that the cell tower is a 4G WiMAX system that is many times stronger than a regular tower that covers 300 yards while WiMAX is able to cover 30 miles. The school district is refusing to remove it.

Parents are demanding a cell tower at their children's elementary school in San Joaquin County, California be removed after four students and three teachers were reportedly diagnosed with cancer.

From CBS Sacramento:

A fourth child has been diagnosed with cancer at a San Joaquin County elementary school, and parents believe it's because of radiation caused by a cell phone tower.

[...] "We had a doctor tell us that it's 100 percent environmental, the kind of tumor that he has," said Monica Ferrulli.

Her son Mason was the second child to be diagnosed with cancer in just three years at Weston Elementary. He was 10-years-old and walked by this cell phone tower daily.

"People who want the tower removed say four students and three teachers at Weston have been stricken with cancer," The Modesto Bee reports. "The kindergarten-through-eighth-grade school on Stanley Drive has 400 students."

The First Non-Binary, 3rd Gender American Says It Was All a Sham

Jamie Shupe, a veteran and the first binary person in the US, categorized as a third gender, has been shunned by the left for speaking out against transgender persons in the military, the transitioning of children and sex change surgery. He said that doctors, judges and activists used him to advance their cause and took advantage of his PTSD. He says that female hormones caused an array of damage including mental problems, bone density loss and kidney problems.

California: Parents Outraged After School District Approves New Sex Ed Program that Teaches 'Gender Identity' to Pre-Teens

Parents of children attending middle school in Orange County, California are upset over updates to the sexual education curriculum that teaches HIV awareness and prevention, birth control, where students can access abortion centers, 'gender identity' and same-sex relationships to children aged 12 to 13 years old. Parents say the curriculum isn't fit for young impressionable children, and that it encourages the students to experiment with their sexuality.

Parents in Orange County, California are outraged over new updates to a sexual education curriculum for middle school students that include 'gender identity' and recognizing same-sex relationships – these students are between the ages of 12 and 13 years old.

The Capistrano Unified School District Board of Trustees approved of the new implementation in a 6-1 vote and updated the materials required under California law – the new curriculum will be rolled out in May of this year.

Trustee Jim Reardon, a conservative Republican, was the only one to vote against the new Marxist updates to the sex ed curriculum.

In order to comply with the 2016 California Healthy Youth Act (CHYA), the Capistrano Unified School District added new updates to the sex ed program which includes information on healthy vs abusive relationships, HIV awareness and prevention, same-sex relationships and instruction on gender identity.

Gender identity instruction will include teaching students about “gender-inclusive” language which advises teachers to use pronouns such as “they” instead of “he or she.”

Washington State Health Secretary Claims Lawmakers Are Receiving Death Threats for Proposing Mandatory Vaccines Amid Measles Outbreak

Washington State Health Secretary John Wiesman has asked the federal government to push health experts and health-care providers to educate the public about the importance of getting vaccinations in reaction to a measles epidemic that has affected 75 people, most under the age of ten, throughout the Pacific Northwest. Parents are deciding not to vaccinate their children due to links with autism. Weisman said that a very well-organized and connected group of a small number of folks who are having a huge impact, although only 1.3% of children under two years old are unvaccinated. He said that people have stalked and even threatened to kill Washington state legislators who've proposed measures restricting parents from opting out of immunizations for their children. Contrary to mainstream propaganda, many peer-reviewed studies link vaccines to autism – see the link to 157 research papers supporting the vaccine/ autism link below.

Washington state's health secretary called for a national education campaign Monday in reaction to a measles epidemic that has spread throughout the Pacific Northeast.

Health

Secretary John Wiesman asked the federal government to initiate an education campaign to combat what he and medical experts allege is the spread of harmful false information, The Washington Post reported Tuesday.

Wiesman attributes much of the outbreak to false information disseminated by “a very well-organized and connected group of a small number of folks who are having a huge impact,” according to the Post. The health secretary has asked the government to push health experts and health-care providers to educate the public about the importance of getting vaccinations.

UK: Kensington Palace Denies Report that Prince Harry and Meghan Markle Plan to Raise Their Baby as 'Gender Fluid'

Meghan Markle, 37, the American actress who married Prince Harry, is 7 months pregnant and recently told guests at her baby shower that she will be raising her child to be gender fluid. Because the royals are influential in the UK, many parents will follow their example, expanding the number of transgender children, despite harmful effects including a much higher rate of attempted suicide for transgender teens and non-binary youth (neither male or female).

Update: Kensington Palace has denied the report that the royal couple is planning to raise their child as gender fluid.

Actress Meghan Markle has reportedly told friends she and her husband Prince Harry have plans to raise their child with a “fluid approach to gender” that refrains from “imposing any stereotypes,” according to sources who spoke with Vanity Fair.

Meghan Markle, now formally referred to as the Duchess of Sussex, is expecting her first child in the coming weeks and has even planned a “gender-neutral” nursery for its enjoyment.

“The Sussexes have already planned a gender-neutral nursery and opted for whites and grays over conventional blue and pink color ways, and this seems to be in line with Meghan’s ideas about how to raise children,” the magazine reported.

“Meghan has been talking to some of her friends about the birth and how she and Harry plan to raise their baby. Her exact word was fluid,” one source close to the actress told the magazine. “She said they plan to raise their child with a fluid approach to gender and they won’t be imposing any stereotypes.”

The 37-year-old, who rose to fame from her role as the paralegal Rachel Zane in Suits, is well known for her progressive political views, particularly on topics such as feminism. In the run-up to the 2016 presidential election, the actress described Donald Trump as both “misogynistic” and “divisive,” while she also expressed her disappointment at Britain’s decision to vote to leave the European Union earlier that year.

UK: NHS Child Sex Change Clinic Chief Resigns After Disturbing Report from Staff

London: Marcus Evans, a governor with the Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust, resigned from the non-profit organization that is part of the NHS to protest the group’s dismissal of allegations that the clinic was ‘fast-tracking’ children into gender reassignment due to intense pressure from LGBT campaigners.

Summary by JW Williams

The Tavistock Institute that has been accused of mass social engineering, was created with funding from the Rockefellers. The Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust is part of Britain's National Health Service (NHS) socialized medical system and is a non-profit corporation that provides research, treatment and training. Foundation trusts provide over half of all NHS hospital and mental health services, but are not directed by the government.

The Tavistock and Portman NHS Foundation Trust, England's flagship child sex change clinic, is trying to dismiss an internal report by its medical staff, led by Dr. Bell, that was leaked last year and warned that children are at risk of "long term damage" as they are put onto life-changing drugs as a quick fix for their psychological problems and/or autism without sufficient assessment. The push for children to change their sex comes from pressure from pro-transgender activist groups such as Mermaids UK, that lobbies to abolish a minimum age for gender-confused children to take sex change drugs that cause permanent sterility. Over the past five years, the number of children referred to the Tavistock Centre has risen from 468 to 2,519 a year, a rise of more than 400%. The health of thousands of children is at stake.

Mermaids has been accused of using intimidation and blackmail to promote fertility-compromising "treatments" for underage children – and was even ordered not to contact a family after a judge ruled a woman, who was being advised by the group, had been abusing her 7-year-old son by forcing him to live as a girl. The group is also accused of using intimidation and blackmail to promote their agenda and creating "an atmosphere of significant persecution” for the staff at the Tavistock clinic, which has failed to stand up to Mermaids. The UK National Lottery recently awarded $664,000 to Mermaids.
