

COVID Antiviral Pills Cause Life-Threatening Reactions With Many Common Meds

written by GEG | December 30, 2021

Unfortunately, both Pfizer's and Merck's antiviral drugs can cause life-threatening reactions with other drugs such as widely used medications like statins, blood thinners and some antidepressants. The Merck drug hasn't even been approved because the experts are worried about potential side effects.