

France: Yellow-Vest Protesters Rattle Elite Rulers with Proposed Bank Run

France is considering criminalizing anti-government protests that are not authorized by the government itself. Protest leaders are being arrested during the night. The Yellow Vests have unnerved globalists by supporting a plan to withdraw money from the banks and, thereby, crash the euro. Sentiment against globalism is uniting elements of both left and right in opposition to mass immigration. French President Macron has proposed debates instead of protests and announced 10-billion euros ($11.5-billion) worth of government spending to boost the purchasing power of French households. [Hopefully, the French understand that, in order for the government to give them $11.5, first it must take from them $11.5 plus handling, which often is an equal amount.] -GEG
