

Kentucky Proposes New Laws that Include Using Deadly Force Against Homeless People

written by GEG | January 29, 2024

New laws proposed in Kentucky include allowing property owners to use “justifiable” force to remove homeless trespassers. The bill also deems “deadly physical force” justifiable if a defendant believes a homeless individual is attempting to “dispossess” or rob them of their property, or committing arson.