

Big Pharma Uses Proxy Advertisers To Keep Prescription Drug Prices High

written by GEG | April 18, 2017

Advertisements creating fear over the possibility that lower drug prices will lead to lower quality and drug reactions have been appearing in newspapers to diminish support for new bills designed to lower drug prices. These ads were placed by organizations that have ties to the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America, which wants to keep drug prices high.