The left has abandoned education in favor of political propaganda under a program called 'Deep Equity' that essentially trains teachers to become activists, pitting groups against each other through a hierarchy of oppression. Tucker says the program instructs that men oppress women, Christianity oppresses Islam, English oppresses Spanish, and white people oppress everyone.

Author heather MacDonald says that the more schools become politicized, the further the decline in basic skills. The West broke away from colonialism and slavery, and it is responsible for bringing the concept of individual rights to the world. She says there is an emergency in the education system and recommends home schooling children.

California School District Will Not Allow Parents To Opt Children Out Of LGBTQ Content

California: Murrieta School District will not allow parents to opt their children out of classes containing LGBTQ content. Strong objections arose when parents were shown a video featuring an ACLU staff member instructing teachers how to teach children about oral sex, masturbation, and same-sex relationships and how to help girls obtain abortions without parental knowledge. This is impossible because LGBTQ content is infused throughout the curricula, including history classes. Murrieta School District's Monica Gutierrez of the Public Information Office said that the California Healthy Youth Act requires teachers and curricula to "affirmatively recognize different sexual orientations, be inclusive of same-sex relationships, and teach students about gender identity and gender expression." -GEG

- A California school district will not allow parents to opt their children out of classes involving LGBTQ content.
- A representative of the district said in an email this is because LGBTQ content is "fused throughout the entirety of the curriculum."
- Murrieta School District previously came under fire for a video depicting an ACLU staff member instructing teachers how to help students obtain abortions without parental consent.

A California school district will not allow parents to opt their children out of classes containing LGBTQ content, figures or historical references, emails show.

Murrieta School District says parents have the ability to opt their children out of comprehensive sexual health, but parents are still not able to opt their children out of LGBTQ content when taught in other subjects, according to emails obtained by the Daily Caller News Foundation.

The district recently came under fire after a video from the conservative group Our Watch exposed progressive sex education programs in California teaching children about oral sex, masturbation, role-playing and more.

The video depicts ACLU staff attorney Ruth Dawson, according to Our Watch, instructing teachers on how to help students obtain abortions without parental consent. The video generated no local or national media coverage until a tipster alerted the DCNF.

An investigation by the DCNF found the California Board of Education implemented progressive sex and gender education curriculum in public schools across the state and that the ACLU was permitted to instruct California public school teachers on how to help children obtain abortions without parental consent.

Murrieta School District's Monica Gutierrez of the Public Information Office sent a July 29 email warning parents that misinformation was being spread throughout the district. President of Our Watch, Pastor Tim Thompson, said the misinformation Gutierrez was referring to was the Our Watch video and subsequent media coverage.

"I am writing to you this morning because the inaccuracies and false information regarding comprehensive sexual health education is once again propagating our community,” Gutierrez wrote in an email to a group she referred to as “key communicators” obtained by the DCNF. She did not respond to multiple requests for comment.

Gutierrez attached a pamphlet to the email, intended to distill rumors previously circulating in the community.

Thompson said he had proposed a model policy in a March email to the Murrieta School District that addressed concerns regarding LGBTQ content being taught to children. Gutierrez denied the request and told Thompson it was not possible for parents to opt their children out of LGBTQ content.

“We write in response to your request that the Murrieta Valley Unified School District (“District”) mandate opt-out notifications in grades K-12 from discussions that mention LGBTQ content, figures, or historical references,” Gutierrez wrote in a March 1 letter.

Gutierrez pointed out the California Healthy Youth Act, otherwise known as AB-329, mandates teachers and curricula “affirmatively recognize different sexual orientations, be inclusive of same-sex relationships, and teach students about gender, gender identity and gender expression.”

“For all sexual health education, instruction and materials used in the District’s sexual health and HIV education must be age appropriate, medically accurate, and appropriate for use with students of all races, genders, sexual orientations, and ethnic and cultural backgrounds, English learners, and students with disabilities,” she continued.

The California Board of Education did not respond to multiple requests for comment on this mandate.

“In practice, this means that the above-mentioned criteria must be fused throughout the entirety of the curriculum,” Gutierrez added.

She said parents can opt their children out of the sex education courses but emphasized that California Healthy Youth Act has caused LGBTQ content to be included throughout a variety of courses and cannot reasonably allow parents to opt their children out of courses such as history.

Thompson told the DCNF he was moved to share pictures of Gutierrez's emails on Facebook after the DCNF covered the Our Watch video.

"After your article stirred everything up, they told everyone the video was all lies," he said. "That is when I decided to let everyone see the letter."

Thompson explained children can be exposed to LGBTQ content in all areas of study, and that teachers will have the ability to use any books from the approved framework within the California Healthy Youth Act.

"The fact that the Murrieta Valley Unified School District continues to mislead parents by telling them that they can opt out infuriates me," Thompson told the DCNF.

"They quote the opt out right pertaining to sex ed and never tell the parents that the LGBTQ content in other classes can not be opted out of. Everything they show the parents has to do with sex ed, and parents don't know that these issues are now in history, language arts, assemblies, and the like."

Thompson said the district policy is made very clear in the March letter he received and has since posted on Facebook. He added that Murrieta is not the only district doing this.

"Similar tactics of deceiving parents are deployed in districts around our state, and our nation. It's time for parents to apply some very hard pressure to their respective school boards."

Thompson said he attended a Thursday board meeting with the Murrieta School District where he called on the board to declare the district a "Sanctuary School District" for parental rights.

Video of Danish School Children Chanting Allahu Akbar Triggers Debate. Integration Or Indoctrination?

A video of third-grade Danish students being instructed to recite Islamic prayers prompted harsh criticism. The school cited a 1993 law that requires schools to teach about various world religions and philosophies, saying that the prayer was used for creating understanding. A critic concerned with European identity says that teaching about other religions should not include requiring children to participate in the prayers of those religions. -GEG

The methods of integrating Muslim refugee children into Denmark's society is at the center of a fierce debate, after a video of Danish pupils being trained to recite Islamic prayers prompted harsh criticism from conservatives.

Defenders of European identity quickly rushed to condemn 'Koran indoctrination' in schools after a two-minute video surfaced online showing a boy of African descent teaching his third-grade classmates his daily prayer ritual, all under the careful guidance of their teacher. The entire exercise ends with the class kneeling and chanting 'Allahu Akbar' (God is great).

The principal of Thyregod school in Vejle municipality defended the teaching methods used during the "getting to know each other" week, where pupils of different backgrounds had a chance to share their culture.

Looking

at the legislation, it says that we must spread the knowledge of different religions, including also the practical understanding, so yes,

I think it was a good way to teach children about religion.

The school's explanation, however, failed to quell critical voices defending European identity and values, with Stephen Morris, chairman of the English Democrats North West, having a heated dispute with the chief executive of the Ramadhan Foundation, Mohamed Shafiq, on RT.

"It is the school's fault in trying to teach people about different religions. It is one thing teaching them what goes on but getting them to actively pray, that is the violation of their European rights, their human rights. It should not be done," Morris said.

Oregon: Parents Sue Elementary School After Forced Transgender Education and Transition Encouragement

Woodburn, Oregon: The parents of an 8-year-old boy are suing the school district for $999,999 after they say their son's second grade teacher took him away from recess and forced him to sit through transgender re-education on at least three occasions. The boy used the bathroom for school staff, leading the teacher to believe the boy wanted to "transition" and encouraged him seek gender reassignment.

The parents of an 8-year-old boy in Woodburn, Oregon, are suing the school district for $999,999 after they say their son was taken away from recess and forced to sit through transgender re-education as school officials thought the boy wanted to "transition" and encouraged him seek gender reassignment.

The Statesman Journal reports:

School District for almost a million dollars say a second-grade teacher kept their son from recess and educated him without their permission about being transgender.

The lawsuit filed in Marion County Circuit Court accuses the school of false imprisonment, negligence and the intentional infliction of emotional distress.

The student was 8 years old when his teacher, after noticing the boy used the staff bathroom, pulled him aside, kept him from recess and showed him videos and books “in an effort to promote (him) becoming transgender,” according to the complaint.

The then-second grader at Nellie Muir Elementary School and his parents had made arrangements with the school for him to use the staff restroom because of a digestive-related medical condition.

His teacher assumed the boy was not comfortable using the public boys’ restroom because he was transgender, according to the lawsuit.

The complaint also alleges the following:

In April 2018, without notifying the parents and without any authorization from the school district, the teacher began developing a lesson plan to help the boy understand what it meant to be transgender.

She then began keeping the student inside the classroom alone during recess at least three times to show him videos and teach him “it is acceptable to become transgender.”

These lessons included episodes of the reality television series “I Am Jazz” about a transgender girl named Jazz Jennings, books “I Am Jazz” and “Who are You? The Kid’s Guide to Gender Identity” and discussions on the difference between male and female body parts.

The books and show, which were recommended by an “unknown non-school employee transgender individual,” exposed the boy to sexual topics and sexual discussions, according to the lawsuit.

Retired NYU Professor

Explains Why Students Prefer Socialism

Dr. Michael Rectenwald, a retired NYU professor, says that socialism spread across college campuses decades ago after professors went to the Soviet Union and were exposed to propaganda about the Soviet system. When they returned, they began teaching socialism to future teachers in the US, and that process of teachers teaching teachers has subverted the entire education system. Rectenwald says nearly all professors in the humanities and social sciences today are left-wing socialists [the generic name for socialism is collectivism.] - GEG Retired NYU professor Dr. Michael Rectenwald explained how educators are encouraging the spread of socialism throughout college campuses, on “Fox & Friends” Monday.

“You had professors going over to the Soviet Union from America, going over to the Soviet Union, learning about the Soviet system of education and being convinced that they should bring it to the U.S. and re-engineer the entire education system after it,” he said.

“And this was a professor, particularly George Counts who came back, taught at Columbia teacher’s college. And he’s teaching teachers who are going to then propagate the same ideology

that he's teaching them. This is how it spreads."

Rectenwald claimed almost half of all professors in academia identify as socialist and said nearly all of them are "leftist."W

NBC Launches News Program for Children That Promotes Leftist Values

NBC News is now making liberal propaganda

The new series premiered on September 24, after NBC Universal took over the children’s channel Sprout. According to a story on the takeover from the New York Times, Universal Kids is being marketed for children aged two through 11.

While the concept of a news show for children seems adorable and endearing, diving into the episodes reveals a deep Democratic Party bias.

For example, in their video titled “Diversity in the 2018 Midterms,” the show featured multiple Democratic candidates – but not a single Republican.

“Many candidates in the 2018 midterm elections come from diverse backgrounds, including Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Deb Hallend, and Ilhan Omar,” the episode description reads.

During the episode, host Savannah Sellers begins by stating that “the midterm elections are coming up, and this year’s candidates are making history even before any ballots are cast. There is more diversity among candidates than ever before. Diversity means difference. And people who represent all of the different people in the United States are running for office– and feeling like they can win. Like Alexandria Ocasio Cortez.”

“Christine Hallquist is running for governor in Vermont. If she wins, she could be the first transgender governor in the United States. In New Mexico, Deb Haaland could be the first Native American woman elected to Congress,” Sellers continues.

Leftist protesters in Washington DC were asked if they support a Marxist revolution, and their answers show that they have no deep understanding of political ideology but, instead, have been massively exposed to Marxist slogans. # Planned Parenthood Calls for Disney Princess Who's Had an Abortion

Planned Parenthood in Pennsylvania tweeted that the Disney company should expose children to extreme left-leaning themes including a Disney princess who has had an abortion, a princess who is pro-choice, a princess who is an illegal alien, a princess who is a union worker, and a princess who is transgender. The tweet was deleted shortly after posting. -GEG
Planned Parenthood argued in support of new Disney characters Tuesday including a princess who's had an abortion.

In a statement on Twitter, the "Planned Parenthood Keystone" account called on the animation company to expose children to numerous left-leaning themes.

The tweet, which received only 40 retweets, was deleted shortly after as both supporters and opponents of the organization voiced their concerns.

"Disney princesses are for CHILDREN and these are adult issues. Jesus," one supporter said. "This far-out crap is why we got stuck with Donald Trump."

Another pro-choice Twitter user agreed, describing Planned Parenthood's tweet as "extreme."

Others likewise pushed back against the group's demand prior to the tweet being deleted.

Those opposed to Planned Parenthood also weighed in, both mocking and criticizing the political tweet.

"We need a Disney princess who uses her royal authority to defund you stupid a**holes,” the Daily Wire’s Ben Shapiro said.

“A trans princess who is an illegal immigrant union worker who has had an abortion. Kids will love it!” another joked.

Twitter users quickly turned the tweet into a meme, offering up suggestions on what kind of Disney princesses are needed.

Conservative Latino High School Student Crushes Liberal Teacher with Facts

New York: Leftist teacher harangues a conservative Latino because he challenges minority-victimhood rhetoric. Teacher says FBI statistics on crime cannot be trusted because FBI is “seeded” in white supremacy. [Listen to this and see if this sounds like a teacher or an agitator.] -GEG

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=P-8k7YKl8hE>

A high school student from the Hudson Valley area in New York, who wishes to remain anonymous said he was challenged by his liberal creative writing teacher for being a Latino Trump supporter, and he captured most of the back-and-forth on video.

Within the heated political exchange, the liberal teacher perpetuated the notion of rampant anti-black racist police shootings in America, claimed she was “smarter” than the dictionary, suggested FBI statistics were bunk because the organization is “seeded” in white supremacy, and accused the Latino student of being a brainwashed “radical.”

Although the 12th grader cited statistics and facts, the teacher maintained her victimhood narrative and carried on the debate for what the student said was well over the ten minutes captured on camera.

Here's the student's take, posted via a pseudonym online:

She was talking loudly about Trump and I am one of the few right-wingers in my school. So she asked me why I supported him seeing as how I am Latino, and he hates us. I responded saying that he doesn't hate Latinos, he just wants to remove Illegals from the US. It then shifted to how there are a war on blacks and other minorities because of cop killings, and stated that the FBI statistics I was using were skewed because it was seeded on white supremacy.

It finally shifted to where she said how when its a Muslim attack, its labelled terrorism, but Vegas was not since he was white. I told her that so far, unless something turns up, we have not found any political or religious aims, and therefore it cannot be viewed as a terrorist incident because the definition of terrorism states violence in the pursuit of political aim ((anti-fa)). At that point, she claimed multiple times the dictionary was wrong and that she knew more than it.
